DEADLOCKED ON PURCHASE OF WATER PLANT

CITY REFUSES $20,000 BOOST IN THE PRICE

Water Company Asks City To Assume Half of $23,000 Litigation Expense

ALSO 1923 TAXES

City Refuses to Meet Term, and Deal For Purchase of Plant Appears Off

AGREE ON PRICE

Except for any future legal complications the city reached an agreement with the Bismarck Water Supply Company shortly before 5 P. M. The price was $25,000 and exemption from 1923 taxes. It is expected that this ends the controversy of years' standing.

Members of the city commission and representatives of the Bismarck Water Supply Company apparently were deadlocked on the matter of a purchase price for the present water plant late this afternoon. Unless there was some change of attitude, which would be unexpected, the deal will not go through.

The company representatives asked that the sale price of $25,000 agreed on last summer stand, that the city pay about $23,000 before the railroad commission some three years ago and that the city pay this year's taxes, about $5,000.

The city offered to pay the purchase price of $25,000 and pay the taxes from June 9, the time when under the former agreement it would take over the plant.

This was the situation when the parties met this afternoon. After conversations the city was willing to compromise by assuming all of this year's taxes.

The water company representatives asked that the city pay half the litigation expense, or about $12,000. This, according to city representatives, together with the taxes, would represent an increase of about $20,000 over the original $25,000 purchase price.

Judge Flannery informed members of the commission that a bond had been insisted upon by the city paying part of the litigation expense. Members of the city commission flatly refused to bear any part of it.

The situation was, so far as the sentiment of the city commissioners was concerned, that if the deal did not go through, the city would proceed to build a complete new plant which it could do, according to engineers' estimates, for about $27,000 more than taking over the old plant and improving it, and also would begin a fight for lower water rates and other litigation.

While the parties were at the city hall, States Attorney Allen and Sheriff Hedstrom served a garnishment on the city for the water company's 1921, 1922 and 1923 taxes, of approximately $25,000.

The city commission and Judge George P. Flannery, head of the Bismarck Water Supply Company, and Pierce Butler, Jr., attorney of St. Paul, held their first meeting on the question of the purchase of the plant of the company.

The commission, with P. C. Remington and H. J. Duemeland of the citizens committee, discussed the proposition in the commission meeting last night with Judge Flannery. Mr. Butler and Alfred Zuger were asked to meet with the body. The original agreement had been that the city was to take over the water plant as of June 9, but could make the payment as late as September 9. This was not consummated because of delay in completing financing plans.

Both parties stated that they desired to approach the proposition of acquiring the old plant in a considerate manner. Mr. Flannery said that he was responsible to bond holders and stockholders and was not entirely free in the matter. He and Mr. Butler raised the question of $23,000 of expense incurred in the litigation before the railroad commission some three years ago. This expense the railroad commission ordered amortized and added to the bills of consumers in the fixing of the rate over a period of years. Mr. Flannery said this was considered by the stockholders as a debt against the city and the city should assume it.

The question of taxes also came up. The taxes for 1921, 1922 and 1923 amount to about $25,000. He suggested that when the city was to take over the plant on June 9 the taxes had not been spread and asserted it was customary in such a situation that the purchaser should assume the tax. He asked that the city assume the taxes for this year.

MRS. COOLIDGE PLANTS TREE WHILE

The tree planted is a part of a program by Oberlin students throughout the world.

RISK PAYMENT ONLY DURING EMPLOYMENT

Cases Cited Showing Working of Provision of Law in Compensation Bureau

Allowance of compensation for injury is made only where it is plainly shown that the injury is in the course of employment, it is pointed out in a decision of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau here. The decision is digested by Commissioner R. E. Wenzel as follows:

A stenographer for an auto company, while being taken to her home after the day's work by another employee, using a company car, injured her ankle while stepping from the auto to the curb. Machine was being used without the knowledge or consent of the employer and no agreement for transportation of employee, express or implied, existed. Street car ran within one-half block of the garage and about the same distance from employee's home, but employee generally walked to and from work. Claim dismissed as not being for an injury sustained in course of employment.

Another case follows:

An employee of a gas and oil station was in the course of his employment, required to go to a certain garage to fill cars belonging to a taxi line. On a Sunday, when the schedule for cars necessitated his being at the garage with the truck at about 3 p. m. and again about 6:30 p. m., he was severely burned by the explosion of gasoline sometime between those two hours. The explosion was caused by a lighted cigarette. Testimony somewhat conflicting, but in the main showed that the gasoline came from leaky tank on claimant's motorcycle being repaired by a friend, and that claimant was standing near the motorcycle, if not actually working on it at time of accident. Truck used to fill cars had previously been taken back to station by claimant. Case dismissed for reason that injury was not in course of employment.

MRS. MORAN PROVES SUCCESSFUL CORN, CATTLE AND HOG RAISER

Mrs. Jennie Moran, who with her son operates a big farm southeast of Bismarck, is well satisfied with the result of this year's operations. She will make a profit of several thousand on her section of 640 acres of land after paying half of it to renters of 320 acres, she said in Bismarck today.

Mrs. Moran, who is one of the first corn raisers of this section, is well satisfied with North Dakota and is enthusiastic over it as a corn-raising state. She has raised corn each year for the last seven years, the yield improving each year. This year, she said, her corn will average about 50 bushels an acre.

As a corn raiser, Mrs. Moran would put some men in the discard, she believes. She has been husking corn for four weeks. She will husk not less than 50 bushels a day, and she says. She and her son will put about 4,000 bushels of corn in the crib.

Mrs. Moran raises good stock. She now has thoroughbred Holsteins. She began raising hogs some years ago, buying registered brood sows. She now has 20 cows and feeds from 10 to 40 hogs. She also has 40 registered pigs and 18 registered calves.

RATE PROPOSAL WOULD FORCE LIGNITE BOOST

Operators Say That Increase Might Be From $1.00 to $1.50 a Ton

SUSPENDED 4 MONTHS

Average Increase Asked on One-Line Hauls Is Placed at 51 Per Cent

TAKE ACTION

Minot, Nov. 9.—The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' Association has forwarded an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission pleading for a suspension of the proposed new lignite rate tariff filed with the commission Wednesday by the Northern Pacific railroad according to an announcement by James F. Milloy of this city, executive secretary.

In the communication to the Interstate Commerce Commission the new rates are declared to be unreasonable and prejudicial to shippers and a burden on consumers of the northwest. Preliminary work has been started toward securing cooperation from civic organizations in North and South Dakota and Minnesota in opposing the establishment of the new tariff.

The proposed increase in the lignite coal freight rates in North Dakota might mean a boost in the price of coal from $1.00 to $1.50 a ton, according to one of the largest operators in this section. The increase would restrict the present market extension of the lignite coal industry, and therefore would entail to the operators' great loss because of the expansion they have undertaken. The operators, to continue, necessarily would increase the price of coal greater than proposed increase in the freight rates, it was explained.

Since the railroad commission has suspended the proposed rate increase, a detailed comparison of the expansion they have undertaken. The operators, to continue, necessarily would increase the price of coal greater than proposed increase in the freight rates, it was explained.

MAKE SUNDAY DAY OF STUDY OF COURT IDEA

Governor Calls Attention To Appeal of the Federal Council of Churches

North Dakotans are urged to observe Sunday, November 11 as a day for study of the world court idea, by Governor Nestos in the following statement:

"I have just received from the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, a request that we observe Sunday, November 11, as World Court Sunday, and that we study the world court idea from the standpoint of its relationship to the American ideal, to the Court of Arbitration, and to the League of Nations."

"While I shall not issue a proclamation for the purpose of designating either World Court Sunday or a World Court Week, I nevertheless feel that we are so much interested in re-establishing and maintaining the peace of the world that we should give ex-President Harding's recommendation of a World Court, our most serious consideration, and to review with care both the advantages claimed for America's membership in such a court, and also the objections raised to such membership."

"I would recommend to the people of this state that they give serious consideration to this great problem."

Fire Starts in Lumberyard

Cloquet, Minn., Nov. 9.—Fire that destroyed a section of a lumber yard of the Northern Lumber Company just across the river from Cloquet was declared under control this afternoon at a loss of $20,000. The wind was blowing away from the city proper, and city officials declared that there was no danger of the fire spreading to the main part of town. Fire started before 1 a. m. and within an hour was within control or at least certain to be confined to a section of the lumber yard representing one-tenth of the yard.

FRENCH WON'T YIELD TO U.S., AGENCY SAYS

Semi-Official Statement From Paris Capital Shows Premier Poincare Adherent

CONFERENCE KILLED?

View Taken by Officials—Secretary Hughes Refuses Comment on the Dispatch

Paris, Nov. 9.—A semi-official statement issued by the French foreign office through the Havas agency shows that the French government insists on the limitation to the expert reparations inquiry which has been rejected by Secretary of State Hughes.

EXTENT UNCERTAIN

(By the Associated Press.) Washington, Nov. 9.—To what extent the attitude of France has blocked plans for American participation in the reparations discussion is a question which the American government apparently is not yet prepared to answer.

Informed of the Paris semi-official announcement as he was leaving a long session of the cabinet, Secretary Hughes expressed great surprise but declined to make any comment.

DELAY ASKED

Paris, Nov. 9.—The fact that the French ambassador to the United States, M. Jusserand, has requested a delay in publication of Secretary Hughes' declaration regarding the proposed reparations expert committee, is taken as indicating that the United States will decline to participate in the committee.

The chances of the committee being organized consequently are regarded as the slightest.

2 CERTIFICATE ARE NECESSARY

Two certificates of sale are necessary where property is sold, even to the same individual bidder, for general taxes and for special assessment delinquencies, county auditors are informed in a circular letter by Tax Commissioner C. C. Converse, citing the law on the subject. Where special assessments are included in notices of tax sale, the amount of the special assessments shall be stated separately from the amount of general taxes, it is added.

In calling attention to auditors of the change in the law regarding penalty on delinquent taxes, Mr. Converse points out that only 5 percent penalty is added to the second half of real estate taxes and included in the amount for which the land is sold at the tax sale.

WOULD RAISE GERMAN ARMS AGAIN, LUDENDORFF DECLARED

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The Wolff Agency today gave out the text of the speech made at Munich yesterday by Adolf Hitler.

"The government of criminals sitting in Berlin," said Hitler, "has deprived of office as well as Ebert."

"I propose to take direction of the provisional government of the German empire until the moment when the treaty precipitating Germany into ruin today has been abolished."

"His excellency, General Ludendorff, takes supreme command of the German national army. General Von Lossow is appointed German minister of Reichswehr (national defense)."

"We wish to build up an ultra-nationalist confederate state in which Bavaria will have the place due it. Tomorrow will see no continuation of a national government or it will see us dead. There is no middle course."

At Dr. Von Kahr, the Bavarian dictator, had declared that he was taking a hard line in the direction of the state and that he considered himself administrator of the monarchy which the "criminals" had overturned five years ago General Ludendorff said "I am going to re-raise the black, white and red flag throughout Germany, including on the Rhine."

DEADLOCKED ON PURCHASE OF WATER PLANT

CITY REFUSES $20,000 BOOST IN THE PRICE

Water Company Asks City To Assume Half of $23,000 Litigation Expense

ALSO 1923 TAXES

City Refuses to Meet Term, and Deal For Purchase of Plant Appears Off

AGREE ON PRICE
Except for any future legal complications the city reached an agreement with the Bismarck Water Supply company shortly before 5 P. M. The price was $265,000 and exemption from 1923 taxes. It is expected that this ends the controversy of years' standing.

Members of the city commission and representatives of the Bismarck Water Supply Company apparently were deadlocked on the matter of a purchase price for the present water plant, late this afternoon. Unless there was some change of attitude, which would be unexpected, the deal will not go through.

The company representatives asked that the sale price of $265,000 agreed on last summer stand, that the city pay about $23,000 expense incurred in litigation before the railroad commission some three years ago and that the city pay this year's taxes, about $8,000. The city offered to pay the purchase price of $265,000 and pay the taxes from June 9, the time when under the former agreement it would take over the plant.

This was the situation when the parties met this afternoon. After conversations the city was willing to compromise by assuming all of this year's taxes.

The water company representatives asked that the city pay half the litigation expense, or about $12,000. This, according to city representatives, together with the taxes, would represent an increase of about $20,000 over the original $265,000 purchase price.

Judge Flannery informed members of the commission that a bond holder insisted upon the city paying part of the litigation expense. Members of the city commission flatly refused to bear any part of it.

The situation was, so far as the sentiment of the city commissioners was concerned, that if the deal did not go through, the city would proceed to build a complete new plant which it estimated, according to engineer's estimates, for about $27,000 more than taking over the old plant and improving it, and also would begin a fight for lower water rates and other litigation.

While the parties were at the city hall, State Attorney Allen and Sheriff Hedstrom served a garnishment on the city for the water company's 1921, 1922 and 1923 taxes, of approximately $33,000.

The city commission and Judge George P. Flannery, head of the Bismarck Water Supply Company, and Pierce Butler, Jr., attorney of St. Paul, held their first meeting on the question of the purchase of the plant of the company.

The commission, with P. C. Remington and H. J. Duemeland of the citizens committee, discussed the proposition in the commission meeting last night before Mr. Flannery, Mr. Butler and Alfred Zuger were asked to meet with the body. The original agreement had been that the city was to take over the water plant as of June 9, but could make the payment as late as September 9. This was not consummated because of delay in completing financing plans.

Both parties stated that they desired to approach the proposition of acquiring the old plant in a considerate manner. Mr. Flannery said that he was responsible to bond holders and stockholders and was not entirely free in the matter. He and Mr. Butler raised the question of $25,000 of expense incurred in the litigation before the railroad commission some three years ago. This expense the railroad commission ordered amortized and added to the bills of consumers in the fixing of the rate over a period of years. Mr. Flannery said this was considered by the stockholders as a debt against the city and the city should assume it.

The question of taxes also came up. The taxes for 1921, 1922 and 1923 amount to about $33,000. He suggested that when the city was to take over the plant on June 9 the taxes had not been spread and asserted it was customary in such a situation that the purchaser should assume the tax. He asked that the city assume the taxes for this year. (Continued on Page 8)

RISK PAYMENT ONLY DURING EMPLOYMENT

Cases Cited Showing Working of Provision of Law in Compensation Bureau

Allowance of compensation for injury is made only where it is plainly shown that the injury is in the course of employment, it is pointed out in a decision of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau here. The decision is digested by Commissioner R. E. Wenzel as follows:
A stenographer for an auto company, while being taken to her home after the day's work by another employee, using a company car, injured her ankle while stepping from the auto to the curb. Machine was being used without the knowledge or consent of the employer and no agreement for transportation of employee, express or implied, existed. Street car ran within one-half block of the garage and about the same distance from employee's home, but employee generally walked to and from work. Claim dismissed as not being for an injury sustained in course of employment.

Another case follows:
An employee of a gas and oil station was, in the course of his employment, required to go to a certain garage to fill cars belonging to a taxi line. On a Sunday, when the schedule for cars necessitated his being at the garage with the truck at about 3 p. m. and again about 6:30 p. m., he was severely burned by the explosion of gasoline sometime between those two hours. The explosion was caused by a lighted blowtorch. Testimony somewhat conflicting, but in the main showed that the gasoline came from leaky tank on claimant's motorcycle being repaired by a friend, and that claimant was standing near the motorcycle, if not actually working on it at time of accident. Truck used to fill cars had previously been taken back to station by claimant. Case dismissed for reason that, injury was not in course of employment.

MRS. MORAN PROVES SUCCESSFUL CORN, CATTLE AND HOG RAISER

Mrs. Jennie Moran, who with her son operates a big farm southeast of Bismarck, is well satisfied with the result of this year's operations. She will make a profit of several thousand on her section of 640 acres of land after paying half of it to renters of 320 acres, she said in Bismarck today.
Mrs. Moran, who is one of the first corn raisers of this section, is well satisfied with North Dakota and is enthusiastic over it as a corn-raising state. She has raised corn each year for the last seven years, the yield improving each year. This year, she said, her corn will average about 60 bushels an acre.
As a corn husker, Mrs. Moran would put some men in the discard, she believes. She has been husking corn for four weeks. She will husk not less than 50 bushels a day, and on some days as much as 60 bushels, she says. She and her son will put about 4,000 bushels of corn in the crib.
Mrs. Moran raises good stock. She now has thoroughbred Holsteins. She began raising hogs some years ago, buying registered brood sows. She now has 20 cows and feeds from 10 to 40 hogs. She also has 40 registered pigs and 18 registered calves.

RATE PROPOSAL WOULD FORCE LIGNITE BOOST

Operators Say That Increase Might Be From $1.00 to $1.50 a Ton

SUSPENDED 4 MONTHS

Average Increase Asked on One-Line Hauls Is Placed at 51 Per Cent

TAKE ACTION
Minot, Nov. 9.—The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operations Association has forwarded an appeal to the Interstate Commerce commission pleading for a suspension of the proposed new lignite rate tariff filed with the commission Wednesday by the Northern Pacific railroad according to an announcement by James P. Milloy of this city, executive secretary.

In the communication to the Interstate Commerce commission the association declares the proposed rates to be unreasonable and prejudicial to shippers and a burden on consumers of the northwest. Preliminary work has been started toward securing cooperation from civic organization in North and South Dakota and Minnesota in opposing the establishment of the new tariff.

The proposed increase in the lignite coal freight rates in North Dakota might mean a boost in the price of coal from $1.00 to $1.50 a ton, according to one of the largest operators in this section. The increase would restrict the present market extension of the lignite coal industry, and therefore would entail to the operators a great loss because of the expansion they have undertaken. The operators, to continue, necessarily would increase the price of coal greater than proposed increase in the freight rates, it was explained.

Since the railroad commission has suspended the proposed rate boost for 120 days, and similar delay is expected before the Interstate Commerce Commission increased rates would not come in any event until after the peak of the 1923-24 business.

The proposed increases under the basis laid down in the petition of the railroads, was estimated at 40 to 60 percent on one-line hauls by Chairman Milhollan of the railroad commission. A detailed comparison and study worked out by employees of the commission fixes the average increase of the rates at 51.2 percent on one-line hauls and 37.1 percent on two or more line hauls, the terms being used to describe a movement which passes over two or more different railroad lines. The same increase asked for intra-state business was asked for the interstate business.

An investigation of reports of the railroad commission reveals that in 1920 more than 90 percent of the lignite moved on a one-line haul, or on one railroad from mine to destination, while in 1921 85 percent moved on the one-line haul, on which the greatest increase in rates is asked.

Under the proposed increase the cost of hauling one ton of coal from Wilton to Bismarck would be raised from $1.00 to $1.50, an increase of 50 percent. It is proposed in the tariffs to provide a 61-cent maximum for hauls of 30 miles or less.

The rate for hauling a ton of coal 70 miles would be increased 73 cents to $1.19, or 63.1 percent; 100 miles, 97 cents to $1.45 49.1 percent; 150 miles, $1.22 to $1.82, 49.2 percent; 200 miles, $1.50 to $2.55, 60 percent; 300 miles, $1.82 to $2.56, 40.1 percent, according to the comparisons made by employees of the commission. Considerable coal is now being moved from North Dakota mines to Minneapolis. The present rate per ton of lignite from Wilton is $2.43 and under the proposed schedule it would be $3.71 a ton, a boost of 52 percent according to officials.

The railroad in the petition cited the Holmes and Hollowell case, in which coal rates from the lake docks to points in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, were revised in September, 1922 and later.

Fire Starts in Lumberyard

Cloquet, Minn., Nov. 9.—Fire that destroyed a section of a lumber yard of the Northern Lumber company just across the river from Cloquet was declared under control this afternoon at a loss of $20,000. The wind was blowing away from the city proper, and city officials declared that there was no danger of the fire spreading to the rest of town. Fire started before 1 a. m. and within an hour was within control or at least contained to a section of the lumber yard representing one-tenth of the yard.

CONFERENCE RILED?

View Taken by Officials—Secretary Hughes Refuses Comment on the Dispatch

Paris, Nov. 9.—A semi-official statement issued by the French foreign office through the Havas agency shows that the French government insists on the limitation to the expert reparations inquiry which has been rejected by Secretary of State Hughes.

EXTENT UNCERTAIN

(By The Associated Press.)
Washington, Nov. 9.—To what extent the attitude of France has blocked plans for American participation in the reparations discussion is a question which the American government apparently is not yet prepared to answer.
Informed of the Paris semi-official announcement as he was leaving a long session of the cabinet, Secretary Hughes expressed great surprise but declined to make any comment.

DELAY ASKED

Paris, Nov. 9.—The fact that the French ambassador to the United States, M. Jusserand, has requested a delay in publication of Secretary Hughes declaration regarding the proposed reparations expert committee is taken as indicating that the United States will decline to participate in the committee.
The chances of the committee being organized consequently are regarded as the slightest.

2 CERTIFICATE ARE NECESSARY

Two certificates of sale are necessary where property is sold, even to the same individual bidder, for general taxes and for special assessment delinquencies, county auditors are informed in a circular letter by Tax Commissioner C. C. Converse, citing the law on the subject. Where special assessments are included in notices of tax sale, the amount of the special assessments shall be stated separately from the amount of general taxes, it is added.

In calling attention to auditors of the change in the law regarding penalty on delinquent taxes, Mr. Converse points out that only 5 percent penalty is added to the second half of real estate taxes and included in the amount for which the land is sold at the tax sale.

WOULD RAISE GERMAN ARMS AGAIN, LUDENDORFF DECLARED

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The Wolff Agency today gave out the text of the speech made at Munich yesterday by Adolph Hitler.
"The government of criminals sitting in Berlin," said Hitler, "as depicted of office as well as Ebert."
"I propose to take direct on of the provisional government of the German empire until the moment when the treaty precipitating Germany into ruin today has been abolished."
"His excellency, General Ludendorff, takes supreme command of the German national army. General Von Lossow is appointed German minister of Reichswehr (national defense)."

"We wish to build up an ultra-nationalist confederate state in which Bavaria will have the place due it. Tomorrow will see the continuation of a national government and it will see us dead. There is no middle course."
After Dr. Von Kahr, the Bavarian dictator, had declared that he was taking a hand in the direction of the state and that he considered himself administrator of the monarchy which the "criminals" had overturned five years ago General Ludendorff said "I am going to re-raise the black, white and red flag throughout Germany, including on the Rhine."

GERMAN NEWS SENDS FOREIGN EXCHANGE DOWN IN NEW YORK

HIT WALTON'S PAYROLL USE FOR CHAUFFEUR

Senate Committee Learns Driver of Car Was on Public Health Dept. Payroll

ALSO MADE MAJOR

Chauffeur Drew Major's Pay While the State Was Under Military Control

Oklahoma City, Nov. 9.—Additional witnesses will be called to the stand by the prosecution today in the impeachment trial of Governor J. C. Walton in support of its charges that the executive diverted public funds to his own use by entering his own chauffeur on the payroll of the Public Health Department. The allegation constitutes in Article 2 of the impeachment bill against the Governor, charging him with corruption in office, neglect of duty, moral turpitude and incompetence in 22 counts.

The testimony of 11 witnesses yesterday at the opening session of the trial before the senate court of impeachment told how T. P. Edwards, the alleged chauffeur, was placed on the health department payroll as an inspector under an agreement between Governor Walton and Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, who is an appointee of the Governor. This was done, it was said, after the commissioner of highways, had declined "to take care of two or three of my friends at the Governor's request."

Edwards did no work for the department but was paid a monthly salary of $200 for his "services" in the bureau while he operated the executive's private automobile, the testimony showed. Later it was set out Edwards was commissioned a major in the Oklahoma National Guard on Walton's orders and drew regular pay during the period of martial law in the state although he never had stood the required examination, had no previous military experience and had not been regularly sworn in by guard authorities.

LUDENDORFF, WAR GENERAL, IS PRISONER

Effort to Establish New Dictatorship in Germany Meets With Failure

CIVIL WAR FORESEEN

Allied Governments in Conference as Germany Is Racked by New Conflict

Paris, Nov. 9.—The inter-allied council of ambassadors has been summoned to meet this afternoon to consider the situation in Germany.

London, Nov. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Civil war in Germany is regarded here as the only logical outcome of the rebel action in Munich and on the face of news heretofore received such situation is considered inevitable.

The purpose of the Hitler-Von Kahr-Ludendorff combination is not apparent but all advices reaching London point to an attempt to restore the monarchy in Germany with Bavaria replacing Prussia as the leading state.

Gen. Ludendorff, it seems, is to be the military dictator of the Reich and the public is to be swept away. Whether he and his fellow conspirators are men of the right metal to effect the change remains to be seen but the reputation given Von Kahr and Von Hitler in dispatches to the English newspapers during the last few weeks do not suggest that these men possess the necessary qualifications for carrying out such a momentous undertaking.

No word reaching London indicates the attitude of the Reichswehr regarding the Munich revolt but on the loyalty of these troops to the Berlin government everything depends. Hitherto there has been nothing to show any resistance was offered the Hitlerites in Munich and the indications are that the initial stage of the rebellion passed bloodlessly.

PUTSCH CRUSHED

(By The Associated Press)
The nationalist putsch staged in Munich, capital of Bavaria by General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler has been quipped and Von Pöhner, named premier by the revolutionists, is under arrest, according to advices received through various trustworthy channels. Ludendorff and Hitler, who last night proclaimed themselves respectively military dictator and chancellor of all Germany, have also been captured by the federal troops after they had been barricaded in the War Ministry building in Munich, which was surrounded by the troops loyal to the government.

Advices from Berlin and other centers show that Dr. Von Kahr, Bavarian dictator under the Von Knilling regime, and the Reichswehr commander Von Lossow, ranged themselves against the Ludendorff-Hitler organization and that the coup was suppressed almost entirely to the Munich brewhouse in which it was started.

The intense activity in Berlin which followed the first news of the outbreak has died down, according to dispatches from the capital and the situation at mid-forenoon was such that police guards were withdrawn from government buildings.

Authoritative information from Munich is scarce, direct communication having been suspended, railway traffic stopped and an edict issued by War Minister Gessler forbidding publication of other than official reports regarding events in Bavaria.

The French government, which gave official warning in Berlin that it would not tolerate establishment of a national military dictatorship, is watching developments closely and Premier Poincare this morning was in conference with his war ministers while the inter-allied council of ambassadors representing all allied powers will meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

OUTBREAK SUPPRESSED

Berlin, Nov. 9.—(Reuters)—The outbreak in Munich has been suppressed.
Former Police Chief Von Pöhner, one of the leaders of the movement who had been appointed one of the Governors of Bavaria, has been arrested.
General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler are also arrested.

BALDWIN

Peter Wallin, well known resident of this district was badly injured last Sunday night when the car he was driving went over the grade on the Bismarck road just south of Longhorne. Mr. Wallin was taken to Wilton where his injuries were dressed by Dr. Thelan. On examination it was found he had two ribs broken, his back badly bruised and a number of scratches about his head and face. The accident occurred while Mr. Wallin accompanied by Peter Anderson were on their way home from a duck hunt along Painted Woods lake. Mr. Anderson who suffered no serious injury, with the help of friends righted the car and proceeded home.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the garage and car belonging to Joe Poole last Tuesday afternoon about three o'clock. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered and it was only through the most heroic efforts on the part of the Baldwin citizens that near-by buildings were saved. Besides the car Mr. Poole lost a lot of other property which happened to be in the garage at the time of the fire. The loss of their garage and car is a hard blow to Mr. Poole and family. School was dismissed an hour early on account of the conflagration which for a time threatened the school house.

About sixty persons attended the Halloween party which was given by the Baldwin school Friday afternoon. Games were played by the young people and appropriate songs were sung. A nice lunch brought the party to a close.

plan on purchasing a number of cows, hogs and sheep and expect to fence the whole farm with six wires. Mr. Glace who is a well known citizen of his community believes that only through diversified farming can the North Dakota farmer reach success. Mr. Glace has a wife and seven children who will join him later. He is moving overland with teams and wagons, making about thirty miles a day he says.

Miss Welma Graham who is a high school student in Wilton arrived home Wednesday evening to take part in the various Halloween festivities enjoyed by the young folks. She returned to Wilton the next morning on the train.

The very day you start to use Calumet Baking Powder your baking expenses reduce.

The price of Calumet is not the only reason for its economy—it's the great leavening strength it possesses—the unfailing results that are always experienced when it is used, that's what counts.

Never use heaping spoonfuls when you bake with Calumet—it isn't necessary because one spoonful of Calumet does the work of two of many other brands.

Why should you run the risk of spoiling your bakings by using a leavener that has not proven its merits—that may mean success today and failure tomorrow? Don't experiment—use Calumet. It makes more bakings—goes farther and lasts longer. Its superior quality has stood out above all other baking powders for many years.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce cans instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

DISCARDS 13 HUBBIES TO FIND IDEAL

First Venture Was With Farm Hand and Last With Quiet Business Man

HAD MUCH EXPERIENCE

Her Daughters Say That She Was the Best Mother in the World

BY ROY J. GIBBONS.

NEA Service Writer.

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 8.—All her life, Mrs. Cora Walker La Forge here has been seeking the perfect man.

Today, at 43, she believes she has found him—in her fourteenth husband.

Bent on exacting quest for the masculine ideal, and her conception of perfect marital bliss, she cut loose from 13 previous mates who failed to measure up to her standards and thus came into undisputed possession of the world's divorce championship.

Her uncanny ability to assemble and discard lesser halves, dates back to when she was scarce 14, and just plain Cora Walker of Alto Pass, Ill.

Handsome Farm Hand.

At that age, she went to the altar for the first time with Joseph Truxton, a handsome farm hand of her own home town.

Hubby No. 1 was good to look at, she says, but rather inclined to indolence. After three years of helping him with their income, she says, she divorced him.

Since then her checkered conjugal career has passed from church to divorce court in such kaleidoscopic manner that official observers have almost lost count of the occasions.

In rapid succession she changed her last name from Barnes to Butcher to Crow to Porter to Yates to Lilly to Whitney, etc.

Ah, So Happy!

Once again she is back to the letter "L," with Henry La Forge, announced as the present incumbent in her fast-shifting train of hubbies.

"He is a personable, middle-aged business man, of quiet and refined bearing."

One would scarcely class him as an Adonis, but the frequently married Mrs. La Forge assures us he represents the best of his sex, picked from a world full of eligible males, only after careful scrutiny and from experience based upon 13 previous unsuccessful ventures.

"I just know we're going to be happy," she says. "Henry has restored my faith in men. But I never quite lost it though. Because you can't judge them all by a few husbands I mean, of course."

All of Mrs. La Forge's ex-mates are alive, save the ninth.

Al Had Three Chances.

His name was John Whitney, whom she also divorced before he died.

As hubby No. 11, Albert Lilley was given three chances to make good, asserts Mrs. La Forge.

Their marriage was annulled once, and on two subsequent occasions she divorced him before making up her mind positively, she declares, that he wouldn't do.

"I thought that was trial enough," she says.

Sweet Music.

Her marriage to La Forge was celebrated within a week from securing separation from Alexander Yates, hubby No. 13.

The ink scarcely had time to dry on the divorce decree when she murmured a blushing, "yes" to his humorous "will you?"

Having been over the route so frequently, newspaper reporters knew or heart where the bride-to-be's home was, and there assembled to find her preparing her fourteenth trousseau.

The chime of wedding bells was still sweetest music to her ears, she told them.

And likewise she impressed upon them the fact that marriage by no means had lost its appeal to her.

"It's very possible to be happy though married," she says. "All you have to do is to find the right man. I've tried for years, and only now have just succeeded."

Feeds 'Em Well.

Mrs. La Forge runs a comfortable boarding house here from which the fame of her cooking has spread far and wide.

She has two grown and married daughters by one of her early marriages, and they both join in saying she's the best mother in the world.

"Love is the big thing in matrimony," the frequent bride soliloquizes.

"More cooking won't hold any man."

"After marriage a woman finds out what her husband really is."

Kindness First.

"It's too bad she can't tell before."

In Mrs. La Forge's opinion, the most desirable quality in a husband is kindness. Next comes thrift, and then fidelity.

PICKPOCKETS LEARN FROM ART MASTERS

Police Chief of Pickpocket Section of Vienna Sets Forth His Views

RELATES METHODS

Poland and Hungary Has Best Schools in Belief of Expert

Vienna, Nov. 9.—The mental and physical make-up of that world-wide class of minor criminals, the pickpocket, has been set forth with convincing accuracy by the one man in Europe doubtless best qualified to do so, Dr. E. Lewisch, for 18 years chief of the pickpocket section of the Vienna police.

The chief was addressing the delegates to the international police congress. The pickpocket, he said, was essentially a nomad, a rover. He finds his prey on the street, in places of amusement, when an accident draws people together, in the cloakroom of a theater, in short, wherever there is a crowd. He may operate in Vienna today, and tomorrow be loitering about a city a hundred miles away. He must be ready to keep moving and give up and idea of a settled home. In Europe he must be a good linguist.

It is reasonably certain, Dr. Lewisch said, that these men are systematically trained in their work, and he believed the best schools are in Poland and Hungary. Beside strength and manual dexterity the pickpocket must have presence of mind, knowledge of men, and a ready adaptability to cope with unexpected and dangerous situations. Unbounded energy, self-confidence, and a ready eloquence are important assets, and often help him to calm the agitation of his victim, avert suspicion, and even win the confidence and gratitude of the man he is robbing.

The successful pickpocket needs well-formed hands, strong and with long, narrow fingers. He must be able to seize a heavy purse with two fingers as with a pair of pliers, and extract it from a pocket by a quick and sure movement, or twist a watch ring out of its bearings with as easy a grace as if picking a flower from its stem.

In court the pickpocket denies passionately every charge brought against him. He admits absolutely nothing. He has a ready excuse to account for his presence in the city where he was caught. The stolen watch he will swear he picked up from the ground, and as an honest finder he was about to carry it to the police station. Before the judge he will simulate deafness or ignorance of the language of the court. He will fight for time by asking questions on his own account, or pretend sickness or even insanity.

It takes time to build a good case against a pickpocket, Dr. Lewisch declared. He must be held while his record, often in other countries, is being looked up. He must be fingerprinted and photographed, and these evidences distributed to the police authorities all over Europe. And when he is found guilty, Dr. Lewisch concluded, give him a long sentence, preferable in the penitentiary.

PICKPOCKETS LEARN FROM ART MASTERS

RELATES METHODS

Poland and Hungary Has Best Schools in Belief of Expert

Vienna, Nov. 9.—The mental and physical make-up of that world-wide class of minor criminals, the pickpocket, has been set forth with convincing accuracy by the one man in Europe doubtless best qualified to do so, Dr. E. Lewisch, for 18 years chief of the pickpocket section of the Vienna police.

The chief was addressing the delegates to the international police congress. The pickpocket, he said, was essentially a nomad, a rover. He finds his prey on the street, in places of amusement, when an accident draws people together, in the cloakroom of a theater, in short, wherever there is a crowd. He may operate in Vienna today, and tomorrow be loitering about a city a hundred miles away. He must be ready to keep moving and give up and idea of a settled home. In Europe he must be a good linguist.

It is reasonably certain, Dr. Lewisch said, that these men are systematically trained in their work, and he believed the best schools are in Poland and Hungary. Beside strength and manual dexterity the pickpocket must have presence of mind, knowledge of men, and a ready adaptability to cope with unexpected and dangerous situations. Unbounded energy, self-confidence, and a ready eloquence are important assets, and often help him to calm the agitation of his victim, avert suspicion, and even win the confidence and gratitude of the man he is robbing.

The successful pickpocket needs well-formed hands, strong and with long, narrow fingers. He must be able to seize a heavy purse with two fingers as with a pair of pliers, and extract it from a pocket by a quick and sure movement, or twist a watch ring out of its bearings with as easy a grace as if picking a flower from its stem.

In court the pickpocket denies passionately every charge brought against him. He admits absolutely nothing. He has a ready excuse to account for his presence in the city where he was caught. The stolen watch he will swear he picked up from the ground, and as an honest finder he was about to carry it to the police station. Before the judge he will simulate deafness or ignorance of the language of the court. He will fight for time by asking questions on his own account, or pretend sickness or even insanity.

It takes time to build a good case against a pickpocket, Dr. Lewisch declared. He must be held while his record, often in other countries, is being looked up. He must be fingerprinted and photographed, and these evidences distributed to the police authorities all over Europe. And when he is found guilty, Dr. Lewisch concluded, give him a long sentence, preferable in the penitentiary.

DISCARDS 13 HUBBIES TO FIND IDEAL

First Venture Was With Farm Hand and Last With Quiet Business Man

HAD MUCH EXPERIENCE

Her Daughters Say That She Was the Best Mother in the World

BY ROY J. GIBBONS.
NEA Service Writer.
East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 9.—All her life, Mrs. Cora Walker La Forge here has been seeking the perfect man.
Today, at 43, she believes she has found him—in her fourteenth husband.
Born on an exacting quest for the masculine ideal, and her conception of perfect marital bliss, she cut loose from 13 previous mates who failed to measure up to her standards and thus came into undisputed possession of the world's divorce champion.

Her uncanny ability to assemble and discard lesser halves, dates back to when she was scarce 14, and just plain Cora Walker of Alto Pass, Ill.

Handsome Farm Hand.
At that age she went to the altar for the first time with Joseph Truxler, a handsome farm hand of her own home town.

Hubby No. 1 was good to look at, she says, but rather inclined to indolence. After three years of helping him with their income, she says, she divorced him.

Since then her checkered conjugal career has passed from church to divorce court in such kaleidoscopic manner that official observers have almost lost count of the occasions.
In rapid succession she changed her last name from Barnes to Butcher to Crow to Porter to Yates to Lilley to Witney, etc.

Ah, So Happy!
Once again she is back to the letter "L," with Henry La Forge, unscathed as the present incumbent in her fast-shifting train of hubbies.

He is a personable, middle-aged business man, of quiet and refined bearing.
One would scarcely class him as an Adonis, but the frequently married Mrs. La Forge assures us he represents the best of his sex, picked from a world full of eligible males, only after careful scrutiny and from experience based upon 13 previous unsuccessful ventures.

"I just know we're going to be happy," she says. "Henry has restored my faith in men. But I never quite lost it though. Because you can't judge them all by a few husbands I mean, of course."

All of Mrs. La Forge's ex-mates are alive, save the ninth.
At Had Three Chances.

His name was John Whitney, whom she also divorced before he died.
As hubby No. 11, Albert Lilley was given three chances to make good, asserts Mrs. La Forge.

Their marriage was annulled once, and on two subsequent occasions she divorced him before making up her mind positively, she declares, that he wouldn't do.

"I thought that was trial enough," she says.
Sweet Music.

Her marriage to La Forge was celebrated within a week from securing separation from Alexander Yates, hubby No. 13.

The ink scarcely had time to dry on the divorce decree when she murmured a blushing, "yes" to his timorous "will you?"

Having been over the route so frequently, newspaper reporters knew by heart where the bride-to-be's home was, and there assembled to find her preparing her fourteenth trousseau.

The chime of wedding bells was still sweetest music to her ears, she told them.

And likewise she impressed upon them the fact that marriage by no means had lost its appeal to her.

"It's very possible to be happy though married," she says. "All you have to do is to find the right man. I've tried to for years, and only now have just succeeded."

Feeds 'Em Well.
Mr. La Forge runs a comfortable boarding house here from which the fame of her cooking has spread far and wide.

She has two grown and married daughters by one of her early marriages, and they both join in saying she's the best mother in the world.

"Love is the big thing in matrimony," the frequent bride soliloquizes.

"More cooking won't hold any man."
"After marriage a woman finds out what her husband really is."
Kindness First.

"It's too bad she can't tell before."
In Mrs. La Forge's opinion, the most desirable quality in a husband is kindness. Next comes thrift, and then fidelity.

Despite her years of trouble and the cooking, washing and scrubbing she has done for her long succession of mates, she still retains a youthful figure and face.

She is remarkably intelligent, and believes that the bad luck following on her trail for picking 13 lemons in the garden of love has been kissed goodby forever because of her lucky fourteenth venture with Henry—"the ideal of her dreams."

All of which goes to prove that if at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT TAKES A DOWNTURN

Situation in Germany Fails to Affect Market

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Owing chiefly to weakness in corn wheat underwent moderate declines in the early trading. As a price-making factor here disturbing conditions in Germany appeared to count for little but were generally taken as bearish. Dealings in wheat lacked volume and there was no sign of anything suggesting a bullish effect such as in years gone by accompanied news of a war-like character. The opening which ranged one-fourth to three-fourths lower with Dec. $1.05 1-2 to 3-4 and May $1.05 to 7-8 was followed by a slight further drop and then little recovery.

In the later trading the weakness of foreign exchange rates was a noticeable depressing influence. Market closed weak 3-4 to 1-8 net lower. Dec. $1.05 to $1.08 to 1-4 and May $1.10 1-4 to 3-8.

Public Tribute to be Paid to Memory of Mrs. Agatha
Patterson Tomorrow

MAYOR'S STATEMENT

Public tribute to the memory of Mrs. Agatha G. Patterson will be paid by Bismarck business men during the hour of the funeral, Saturday morning. In recognition of Mrs. Patterson's long public service, as a pioneer and a business woman, Mayor Lenhart in a statement today asked that all stores suspend business between 9 and 10 a. m. Saturday. The retail trade committee of the Association of Commerce made this recommendation also.

Mayor Lenhart said: "In the death of Mrs. Patterson the city has lost a citizen who has been active in the business, social and civic life of the city since Bismarck was a frontier town. She was truly one of the pioneers of the city in length of residence here; she was identified with its business life for many years as postmistress, as a member of the library board, as a business woman, and contributed to the upbuilding and development of the community through her efforts."

"The people owe much to those who bore the vicissitudes of the struggle to make a modern city on the prairies and who kept their courage and faith in its future during the hard times and disastrous confagurations of the early days."

"As a fitting mark of respect to the achievements and memory of the deceased, I strongly urge that all business houses suspend business between 9 and 10 a. m. Saturday, the

"The Tanlac treatment is good in the fullest sense of the word," is the concise manner in which P. M. Hubbard, 313 Cameron St., Alexandria, Va., a clerk in the War Department, Washington, D. C., recently spoke of his experience with the medicine.

"For more than a year past I have suffered from a nervous, run-down condition. My digestive organs did not work right, I had little appetite and what I did eat failed to give me proper nourishment. My rest at night was broken, my nerves un-strung, I was considerably under weight, had lost much energy and always felt more or less fagged out. "I bought Tanlac on the advice of a friend and can say that it fully met my needs in every way. I now feel stronger and better by far than I have in months. I eat well and sleep well, have gained up in weight and energy and feel renewed in every way."

Tanlac is for sale by all good drug-gists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

Mrs. Agatha G. Patterson was a pioneer of Bismarck. She saw the city grow from a frontier town to a commanding position in western North Dakota. Her energy and business foresight contributed largely to the development of the city; her public service aided in its growth in civic pride. As a tribute to her memory, our stores will not open Saturday until 10 a. m., after the hour of the funeral.

BALDWIN

Peter Wallin, well known resident of this district was badly injured last Sunday night when the car he was driving went over the grade on the Bismarck road just south of Langborne. Mr. Wallin was taken to Wilton where his injuries were dressed by Dr. Thelap. On examination it was found he had two ribs broken, his back badly bruised and a number of scratches about his head and face. The accident occurred while Mr. Wallin accompanied by Peter Andersson were on their way home from a duck hunt along Painted Woods lake. Mr. Anderson who suffered no serious injury, with the help of friends righted the car and proceeded home.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the garage and car belonging to Joe Poole last Tuesday afternoon about three o'clock. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered and it was only through the most heroic efforts on the part of the Baldwin citizens that nearby buildings were saved. Besides the car Mr. Poole lost a lot of other property which happened to be in the garage at the time of the fire. The loss of their garage and car is a hard blow to Mr. Poole and family. School was dismissed an hour early on account of the conflagration which for a time threatened the school house.

About sixty persons attended the Halloween party which was given by the Baldwin school Friday afternoon. Games were played by the young people and appropriate songs were sung. A nice lunch brought the party to a close.

plan on purchasing a number of cows, pigs and sheep and expect to fence the whole farm with six wires. Mr. Glace who is a well known citizen of his community believes that only through diversified farming can the North Dakota farmer reach success. Mr. Glace has a wife and seven children who will join him later. He is moving overland with teams and wagons, making about thirty miles a day he says.

The very day you start to use Calumet Baking Powder your baking expenses reduce. The price of Calumet is not the only reason for its economy—it's the great leavening strength it possesses—the unfailing results that are always experienced when it is used, that's what counts.

Never use heaping spoonfuls when you bake with Calumet—it isn't necessary because one spoonful of Calumet does the work of two of many other brands.

Why should you run the risk of spoiling your bakings by using a leavener that has not proven its merits—that may mean success today and failure tomorrow? Don't experiment—use Calumet. It makes more bakings—goes farther and lasts longer. Its superior quality has stood out above all other baking powders for many years.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce cans instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

IT OUGHT TO BE FOUGHT

Many forces have joined hands in an effort to develop the lignite coal industry of western North Dakota. Its growth means much—more employment in winter months, more wealth to bear taxes, more North Dakota money kept at home. It is apparent that the railroads ought to benefit by the increase in business which the development of the industry would contribute in ways other than the actual freight tariff on lignite. It would appear at the outset that the lignite industry would be a great aid to the railroads, in furnishing tonnage for the lines in the winter when other tonnage is perhaps lessened.

The railroads now ask that the lignite coal rates be increased 40 to 60 per cent. It is evident that such an increase would be a severe blow to the industry. Not only would it perhaps increase the cost of coal to consumers and retard the extension of the market within the boundaries of North Dakota, but it would seriously interfere with the campaign of the lignite industry to develop markets at greater distances than ever before.

The layman is not in a position to counteract any statements the railroads may make as to the actual cost of handling the tonnage and the receipts. Nor can it be contended that the northwestern railroads are making an unusual profit, from the evidence given before various railroad regulating bodies.

But it does appear that the railroads ought to be interested in the growth of the lignite industry. The railroads of the Northwest ought to be more interested in its growth than in the coal industry of Illinois or Pennsylvania. The railroads themselves ought to be hesitant in asking for an increase which would throttle an infant industry with great potentialities.

It is to be hoped that the lignite coal operators will be joined by commercial bodies in making a determined fight against the increase.

DON'T FORGET THE FACTS

A school for the education of North Dakota citizens in the matter of the progress of the state agriculturally and industrially would serve a good purpose at this time. The merits and demerits of the state may be argued at length without gain; but the facts speak eloquently and for themselves.

It should be remembered that the dairy products marketed through cream stations alone in the state increased from 3,726,374 pounds in 1914 to 7,468,623 pounds in 1922, and that direct shipments brought the total monetary value of cream production in 1922 to $10,535,275.

That the number of cows used for milking increased from 190,824 in 1913 to 385,830 in 1922.

That the acreage of sweet clover and alfalfa increased from 18,951 in 1913 to an estimated acreage of 155,843 in 1923.

That corn acreage increased from 372,896 acres in 1913 to an estimated acreage of 776,756 in 1923.

These are but a few of the salient facts which show that North Dakota has been making a remarkable progress.

TIMES AHEAD

The business outlook is good, according to Jesse L. Livermore, well known in Wall Street as the largest individual stock market operator. Livermore says:

"During the past few years the people of our country have become accustomed to living on a higher standard than heretofore, and they are not going to be satisfied to live any other way in the future. The money they spend must necessarily mean a larger purchasing power, and that purchasing power is bound to keep business going at a good volume."

MORE THAN STATE OF SLAVERY

The day of the 100 per cent efficiency expert seems to be waning, and Americans are learning to live a little as they go along. So comments the Wall Street Journal.

It's about time. The efficiency experts—spurring men on to the last ounce of endurance, and standardizing us like clockwork, canning everything from our food to our thoughts—are destroying humanity at the roots. Real civilization is more than a state of slavery.

CHINESE MEDICINE

Fossils of huge prehistoric animals were discovered in China by American scientists. They're finding it difficult to get permission to bring their finds to America. Chinese law forbids the export, it being the custom over there to grind up old bones and dragon teeth and sell them as medicine.

Well, these concoctions at least are practically harmless. And that's more than can be said for some of the white man's remedies which cure one part of the body by wrecking another.

STRANGE FACT

Ships weigh less when going west than east, according to experiments by Professor W. G. Duffield.

Not long ago, Einstein demonstrated that a yardstick is longer when pointed east-west than if turned to the north and south.

Certainly getting to be a complicated world. There seems to be no such thing as exact knowledge. Everything is contradicted, just as matter of time.

RISING GENERATION

Punch, funniest comic magazine in the world, prints picture of a fat man being carried by a mob of boys. Underneath it says: "No, this is not a triumphal march. It is only poor Mr. Brown on a walking holiday overcome by the heat and discovered by Boy Scouts, who are taking him to the nearest village for medical assistance."

We have an idea, that's what the rising generation is going to do to us. Our generation, you know, has botched things frightfully.

TENANCY ON FARMS

A statement made before the Minnesota Educational Association that forty-seven per cent of Iowa farms are in the hands of tenants may surprise some people. Iowa is commonly regarded as one of the wealthiest agricultural States of the Union, and if so much tenantry exists there, what may be expected of other States?

The subject is important and does not receive enough attention in popular thought. Figures are also sometimes misleading and give wrong impressions. It is claimed, for example, that half the Southern farms in the cotton and tobacco areas are occupied by tenants. Offsetting this, however, is a statement by the Institute of Research in Land Economics, based on its study of the 1920 census, that over the whole United States tenantry has increased only one per cent in the decade between 1910 and 1920. In seven Southern States it finds no increase in farm tenantry during this period.

It might be expected that certain factors would have increased farm tenantry in the last decade. Among these are immigration, the wider use of machinery on farms and the consequent need of large capital. This, however, appears to be a short view of the subject. The fact seems to be that over longer periods, except perhaps in certain districts of the South, farmers on the whole have been moving away from the tenantry and mortgage stage. Under present conditions this promising movement may be checked for a time, but over a longer span of years better farming methods under a diversified crop regime, combined with better marketing, may be depended on to insure progress away from farm tenantry.

Tenancy as a permanent condition is not desirable. As a stepping stone to individual ownership of farms, it has marked progress and been promising. The important thing to know is whether we are working our way out of tenantry, or drifting more extensively into it. Statistics covering the whole country do not seem to justify pessimism in this respect. —Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Missee Pelican was a queer bird. She was queer as to looks and queer as to appetite and queer as to habits—so being queer in three things, you might say she was queer all over. She wasn't a bit handsome. She had a beak long enough for three birds, and she carried her market basket on her chin.

She lived on the edge of the ocean in Dixie Land with six of her children and had a pretty good time fishing and feeding her family and seeing them all grow up into good smart little pelicans.

So now you know all about her. Nancy and Nick happened along when she was giving her son, Pouch, a lesson in fishing, so they sat down on a rock to watch and listen.

"Do it this way, Pouch," said Missee Pelican. "You paddle out on the water a little way and then stop story will. Keep quiet as you can, you know how and when a fish comes near make a grab and tuck him away in your chin. When you get two or three fish you can swim to shore and take your time while you dine. You are not so likely to get indigestion as you would if you bolted your food."

"All right, Mammy," said Pouch, wading out to the edge of the water and floating away as lightly as a cork. With a few shoves of his queer paddle feet, he was away out where it was deep, and then remembering his mother's words, he stopped stony still.

Suddenly the Twins saw a fish come to the top of the water on a big wave. It had a long, pointed snout and its fins stuck up like sails. That's what its name was, a sail fish and it was as long as a bathtub.

"Goodness!" gasped Nancy. "Jimmy Christmas!" said Nick. They were just about to make use of their magic shoes and save Pouch's life, when evidently Mister Sailfish decided he didn't want picnic that day for his lunch and swam out to sea.

The next minute the Twins saw Pouch swimming toward shore as fast as his paddle feet could push him. He had a worried look on his face.

"Say, Mammy," he called, "you didn't tell me what to do when the fish is too big to tuck away in my chin."

"Why you just eat it then and there," she answered. "You don't mean to tell me you let a perfectly good dinner get away."

"Well," the Twins heard Pouch say thoughtfully, "somebody's dinner got away. But I think it was the fish's."

"I expect, little Marquise, I was so completely engrossed in John and my wedding that I did not really look at Sydney Carton. I cannot convey to you my surprise at finding that he is perhaps the handsomest man I have ever seen. He looks at least five years older than Jack although they were in the same class at college; consequently there cannot be more than a year or two difference in their ages.

Perhaps, however, it is because his hair is that beautiful steel gray that we sometimes see framing a young but most intellectual and ascetic face. Great, sleepy, brown eyes, that are habitually serious but which at times become transparent windows through which a mischievous laughing character shows itself—eyes that seem always to take you into their confidence.

I tell you I was very proud when I entered the restaurant with Sydney on one side of me and the striking Viking blondness of Jack looming up on the other. It may have been because I was so conscious of the fact that rarely had a woman entered that room with two such splendid specimens of masculinity that I seemed to feel a hush in the conversation and then a rapid buzzing which told me that we were the observed of all observers.

I was thankful that I was looking my best and had on one of my treasure gowns that I had worn very seldom. It was simplicity itself, a white hand-made frock which Dore Seurs only can make. I remember thinking at the time mother bought it for me of the patient stitches that some woman must have put into its embroideries and tucks and in the sewing of its delicate laces.

I wore no jewels except my pearls—yes, little Marquise, I cannot call them beads anymore. They are pearls.

Sydney had ordered a table reserved and as we took our seats I noticed with a start of surprise that the waiter who stopped at John's chair to take our order was the same one who had waited on us the night

I had broken and scattered my pearls about the floor. I don't think I should have thought about it or recognized it in any way if he had not bent upon me such a peculiar glance of cupid and triumphant understanding that I could not repress a shudder. It was peculiar that both this waiter and Sydney were conscious of my spasm of nervousness and John perfectly oblivious that I was in the slightest annoyed.

"Someone walking over your grave, Leslie," inquired Syd lightly. "I don't think so," I answered, trying to make my voice as casual as his. "You know I am going to be cremated."

"Are you not pushing the mourners a little, Syd, when you begin immediately to talk of death to one so radiantly alive and beautiful as Leslie is tonight?" said Jack, looking me over carefully. "I see you've had your beads re-stringed," he remarked. (Copyright, 1923 NEA Service, Inc.)

THE FOOL

By Channing Pollock.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Gilliam, her mother, Mrs. Gilliam, with Leila Thornbury, a divorcee are trimming a Christmas tree in the Church of the Nativity, a fashionable, church of New York. Mrs. J. Orson Tice, society leader, comes in with Jerry Goodkind, a man-about-town, who is interested in Clara Jewett engaged to the Reverend Daniel Gilchrist, the assistant rector of the church, in bad favor because of his radical sermons. Dr. Wadham, the rector drops in to attend a meeting of the wardens. Jerry proposes marriage to Clara. Daniel hears Charles Benfield demand his dismissal from the church of the Nativity.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Oh, yes," returned Goodkind slyly. "There's a man out there, too, who says he won't go away until he sees you." He reached over and put a hand on Gilchrist's shoulder. "Dan, you're an awfully decent fellow, but I still think you made a mistake going into the church. If you ever want to talk it over with me, I'd be glad to help you—any time. You know that, Goody, Doctor. Goody. Dan, and a merry Christmas. And he was gone."

Dr. Wadham paced the floor in silence for a few moments.

"Daniel, you're in trouble," he announced.

"Doctor, I'm used to it," Gilchrist answered, smiling.

"Then you don't care for your position in this church?"

"There's only one thing I care for more."

"An dhat is?"

"To be worthy of it."

"When you're as old as I am, Daniel," he sighed resignedly, "you'll understand that being honest doesn't necessarily mean being disagreeable."

"Doesn't it mean—telling the truth?"

"So you know the truth, Daniel?"

"Yes, don't you? Doesn't every man—in his heart? And if we want to keep it in our hearts and never think about it or look it in the face, shouldn't some one open the door and cry, 'Behold! I didn't tell them anything they didn't know, Doctor. I don't know anything they don't know. I just reminded them—'"

"That isn't fair. These good people have given—"

"Then—what cost them nothing. Frumpy and rumpry and diamond stars?" He waved a hand toward the bedecked tree. "That's how all of us give—what we don't need, what we don't even want." He paused. "You're a good man, Doctor, and, honestly, what would you say tomorrow if your wife told you she'd sold her rings and given the money to the poor?"

"Why, I—"

"You'd say she was crazy."

"But there's no necessity—"

"Oh, yes, there is. There'll be people lying in the parks tonight. What would Mrs. Tice say if I invited them to sleep in her parlor?"

"That there's no reason why she should share dirt and disease."

"Exactly! We may believe in the brotherhood of man, but we know about germs. We're not sure what is truth, but there's one thing we are sure of and mean to be sure of, and that's our own comfort and to that and I know it and they know it—but we mustn't say it. All right. In God's name what are we to say?"

Dr. Wadham had been awaiting an opening. He saw it now.

"Precisely," he interposed. "That brings us to tomorrow's sermon. Understand us into talk about the strike."

Daniel nodded. "Now that's not a very pleasant subject for Christmas. Wouldn't it be more fitting to preach from the text, 'Glory to God, in the Highest!'"

"And on earth, peace, good will toward men," Daniel added to talk about the strike."

"Yes," agreed Dr. Wadham, delighted at what he interpreted as an acceptance of the suggestion. "You might say there are many kinds of peace—"

"But there aren't," interrupted Daniel.

"There is physical peace," went on the rector, "peace that came with the end of this cruel war."

"There is no peace," said Daniel abruptly. "There is only fear—and hate—and vanity—and lust, and envy, and greed—of men and nations. There are only people preying on one another, and a hungry church. No, doctor, my text will be 'And Peter followed afar off.'"

Daniel looked through the soft shadows into the distance.

"I don't understand," Dr. Wadham stammered.

"We all follow afar off," Daniel's answer was as abstract as though Dr. Wadham was not there. Something strange, something glorious, shone in his eyes.

"Follow whom?"

"Christ!" Daniel replied—as though far away through the shadows he saw Him.

"Daniel—my dear fellow! the rector exclaimed.

Daniel listened as one detached. He turned to the little white-collared man curiously.

"Don't worry," he smiled, reading the rector's anxiety. "I'm quite sane. Only—I've been wondering about that for a long time."

"Wondering," suggested Dr. Wadham, unable to comprehend.

"What would happen if anybody really tried to live like Christ?" Gilchrist spoke fervently.

"It won't work, Daniel," Dr. Wadham spoke feelingly with a trace of disapproval in his voice. "It's a beautiful ideal, but it won't work. Times have changed, and things are different. Life isn't as simple as it was 2000 years ago. The trouble with you, Daniel, is that you're not practical."

"I wonder," Gilchrist remarked thoughtfully.

"At least you must promise not to discuss the strike."

"I can't do that, doctor."

"Or else let me take the pulpit."

"I won't do that." His emphatic tone brought Dr. Wadham's shoulders back squarely.

"Very well," he said sharply. "Preach your Christmas sermon, and afterward—"

"Yes?"

"I think you may find a greater field of usefulness elsewhere."

The men stood face to face for a moment, both tense. It was Daniel who turned and lifted his hand to his face.

"I'm sorry, Daniel," said Dr. Wadham, his tone softening. "I know you've been happy in your work here. I know your failure hurts. But you saw it coming, and you wouldn't turn aside."

He looked up, his eyes flashing. "The man who turns away from his vision—lies! he cried. His voice calmed. "It's all right, doctor," he said.

He reached for Dr. Wadham's hand and shook it. He was smiling—smiling sadly.

CHAPTER VI

Rejected
Dr. Wadham welcomed the entrance of Clara Jewett. He was not alone in that. It was relief for one, solace for the other.

"Well, Miss Jewett," the rector beamed. "I thought you'd gone long ago."

"No," Clara answered with an air of fatigue. "I'm on my way now. Mr. Hinkle cut his finger. I've been applying first aid."

"Woman's traditional mission—to bind our wounds," Dr. Wadham wagged a finger at her. He had crossed to the door. Turning, his eyes met Daniel. It came to him that his remark had another significance. "To bind our— Well, I must be going. Step into my study in the morning, Daniel, and we'll have a look at your sermon."

Clara watched him out. She was irritated.

"An dhat is?"

"To be worthy of it."

"When you're as old as I am, Daniel," he sighed resignedly, "you'll understand that being honest doesn't necessarily mean being disagreeable."

Give Tea-Reception Complimentary To Miss Mary Roberts

Two delightful social affairs complimentary to Miss Mary Roberts of Rochester, N. Y., editor of the American Journal of Nursing were the tea given by Mrs. Breinborn Johnson yesterday afternoon and the reception given by the Bismarck and St. Alexius hospital Alumni Associations at the B. & P. W. club rooms last evening.

About thirty ladies of the city, some of them former nurses and wives of physicians, attended the tea at Mrs. Johnson's from 4 to 6 o'clock. A pretty effect was produced in the Johnson home by the use of vases and baskets of yellow and white asters and dandelions to light the rooms. Assisting the hostess at the tea tables were Mrs. A. M. Christensen and Mrs. C. O. Robinson, and in the living room Mrs. A. M. Brandt.

In the evening Miss Roberts spoke to the 50 nurses from the local hospitals, Bismarck and Mandan, on the aims of the Journal of Nursing and asked for their cooperation in making it a magazine suitable to the needs of private duty nurses as well as hospital nurses. The special part of the evening was enlivened by two duets by Mrs. W. J. Targart and Miss Bertha Hanson who sang "A Little While" and a Tascen Folk song, "Nearest and Dearest."

Acting on the reception committee were Mrs. H. A. Brandt, Mrs. Earl Toppin, Mrs. Carl Kuntz, Mrs. Albert Bloomer, Miss Esther Teichmann, and Mrs. Henry Hanson. This afternoon Miss Roberts spoke before the nurses classes in the Bismarck hospital before leaving.

34 Attend Opening Meeting of L. T. L.

Thirty-four children attended the L. T. L. social at the home of Mrs. L. B. Johnson yesterday when reorganization for the coming season's work was started. Twenty-one of the children attending who were not already members expressed a desire to become members of the junior organization of the W. C. T. U. A pleasant social afternoon followed by the children, following a short talk and explanation of the aims and ideal of the Loyal Temperance Legion by Mrs. John Hughes.

The next meeting of the organization will be Nov. 22. At this time any children who would like to join the organization are asked to attend and take part in the meeting. Those in charge of the work expressed the opinion that this year would be one of great success for the L. T. L., and that the membership would be largest in the history of the local organization.

Dainty refreshments were served at 5 p. m. after which the guests departed voting the Fortress as royal entertainers.

About three hundred dancers attended the harvest ball which concluded the three days bazaar given by the ladies of St. Mary's church at St. Mary's gymnasium last evening. The bazaar was concluded with a dinner attended by 500. It was declared to be one of the most successful ever put on the local organization.

Suit and Coat-Dresses Are Both Proving Popular

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Which shall it be—a suit or a dress—that is the question that distracts the mind of the seeker after new tailored outfits, say the merchandise men. The suit has been rivals, especially the dressy or costume suits; in new two-purpose garments that answer for indoors and out. When fall fashions made their entry elaboration was the order of the day and women were lured away from the severe, mannish tailored suits. When it came to other types, the coat-dress challenged comparison—and often won out.

But only the end of the season will prove which contestants for honors will wear the laurels. The most mannish of tailored suits, made of tweeds and men's suitings, are asserting themselves; and have an undeniable distinction. Coats are finger-tip or wrist-length, single or double-breasted. Besides this suit of severe lines, smart wearers have donned the stock collar and sailor hat to be worn with it. Suits are also reinforced by the semi-sports styles which achieve a victory by the use of novel fabrics and spirited designs that will have their great day when the winter tourist begins to tour. In the meantime other allies of the suit appear in such appealing models as that shown at the left of the illustration, with a jacket of average length; full sleeves with fur cuffs, and a shawl collar of fur. It is worn over a dress with the skirt portion of the same material as the coat and the bodies of crepe de chine, matching the skirt in color, and having a side-lace fastening. For suits of this character one may choose velveteen, broadcloth, pile fabrics, broadcloth (which is made with a ribbed finish this season) and other fine fabrics.

Coat dresses employ the same fabrics and some novelties. The spirited model pictured is of knit crepe and is unusual but tasteful. Its interesting points, literally speaking, are accented by the lining that reveals of crepe de chine in a lighter shade.

THE FRUIT CLOSET SHELF

IN THESE days of abundance we must provide for the future—when winter comes and fresh vegetables are limited in variety. Here is an old-fashioned pickle which, though some would to prepare, is worth all the trouble it makes. Virginia Mixed Pickles.—Slice half a peck of green tomatoes and 15 medium-sized onions. Cut four heads of cabbage as for slaw (that is, shred very fine), quarter 25 cucumbers and cut into two-inch pieces, leaving the peel on. Add one-half peck of small onions. Mix with salt and let stand 24 hours, drain and squeeze dry as possible and cover with vinegar and water. Let stand a day or two, drain again and mix with one ounce of celery seed, one-half ounce of ground cinnamon, one-fourth cupful of white pepper, one-half pound of white mustard seed, one pint of grated horseradish, two ounces of turmeric. Boil six quarts of vinegar and pour boiling hot over the pickles. Do this three mornings in succession, using the same vinegar each time. The third morning add one pound of sugar to the vinegar, then mix one cupful of olive oil with one-half cupful of ground mustard and add when the pickles are cold. Tomato Butter.—Take seven pounds of ripe tomatoes peeled and sliced, three pounds of sugar, one ounce each of whole cinnamon and cloves and one pint of vinegar. Boil three hours, during the last of the cooking stir to keep from scorching. This may be kept in unsealed jars. Red Pepper Jam.—Take twelve large, sweet red peppers, remove the seeds and put through the meat chopper, using the medium knife. Sprinkle with a tablespoonful of salt and let stand three or four hours. Drain, put into a kettle and add one pint of vinegar and three cups of sugar. Boil gently until the consistency of jam—about an hour. Pour into sterilized glasses and when cold cover with paraffin. This makes six glasses.

with. The resultant bunch numbers about 800 large, fine birds.

During the summer the turks provided their own feed, but the owner saw to it that at all times they had access to a plentiful supply of fresh, cool water. For feed this fall, he planted a small patch of corn and now the birds are ranging in this field and "hogging-off" the corn, with no labor to any person and he is getting corn-fed, fat turkeys on the hoof, as it were.

These birds will bring an average of about $3 each and Mr. Omer is sitting pretty and watching his corn grow into turkeys at the prevailing high price for such. His cash expended to date has been nothing and his labor has been the time spent in providing water, plowing, planting and cultivating the corn field.

Of course he was fortunate in not having any coyotes get into the flock and disease did not prevail among them, the latter possibly due to their being almost under natural conditions. The turkey, it is well known, is in nature a wild, roving bird, used to getting its own living and this farmer practically gave the turkeys their original mode of life.

Carl Nelson, of the Missouri Produce Co., tells me that the demand for North Dakota turkeys always exceeds the supply; that our natural conditions are such that we produce birds with a finer texture and better flavor than those raised further east. That this fact is recognized by at least one great railroad system is known to me. Last Thanksgiving every turkey served on the dining cars of the Great Northern road came from Tower county and were raised under identical conditions of life as the ones now growing in this county, mentioned in this article.

What this resident has done, others can do and the spot cash that this man will receive the latter part of this month I wager is much more than many will receive from vastly more work in the grain fields.

Give Tea-Reception Complimentary To Miss Mary Roberts

Two delightful social affairs complimentary to Miss Mary Roberts of Rochester, N. Y., editor of the American Journal of Nursing were the tea given by Mrs. Sveinbjorn Johnson yesterday afternoon and the reception given by the Bismarck and St. Alexis hospital Alumni Associations at the B. & P. W. club rooms last evening.

About thirty ladies of the city, some of them former nurses and wives of physicians, attended the tea at Mrs. Johnson's from 4 to 6 o'clock. A pretty effect was produced in the Johnson home by the use of vases and baskets of yellow and white asters and candles to light the rooms. Assisting the hostess at the tea tables were Mrs. A. M. Christianson and Mrs. C. O. Robinson, and in the living room Mrs. A. M. Brandt.

In the evening Miss Roberts spoke to the 50 nurses from the local hospitals, Bismarck and Mandan, on the aims of the Journal of Nursing and asked for their cooperation in making it a magazine suitable to the needs of private duty nurses as well as hospital nurses. The special part of the evening was enlivened by two duets by Mrs. W. J. Targart and Miss Bertha Hanson who sang "A Little While" and a Tucson Folk song, "Nearest and Dearest."

Acting on the reception committee were Mrs. H. A. Brandes, Mrs. Earl Toppin, Mrs. Carl Knudson, Mrs. Albert Bloomer, Miss Esther Teichmann, and Mrs. Henry Hanson. This afternoon Miss Roberts spoke before the nurses classes in the Bismarck hospital before leaving.

Suit and Coat-Dresses Are Both Proving Popular

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Which shall it be—a suit or a dress—that is the question that distracts the mind of the seeker after new tailored outfits, say the merchandise men. The suit has been rivals, especially the dressy or costume suits; in new two-purpose garments that answer for indoors and out. When fall fashions made their entry elaboration was the order of the day and women were lured away from the severe, masculine tailored suits. When it came to other types, the coat-dress challenged comparison—and often won out.

But only the end of the season will prove which contestant for honors will wear the laurels. The most mannish of tailored suits, made of tweeds and men's suitings, are asserting themselves, and have an undeniable distinction. Coats are finger-tip or wrist length, single or double-breasted. Besides this suit of severe intent, smart wearers have donned the stock collar and sailor hat to be worn with it. Suits are also reinforced by the

IT OUGHT TO BE FOUGHT

Many forces have joined hands in an effort to develop the lignite coal industry of western North Dakota. Its growth means much—more employment in winter months, more wealth to bear taxes, more North Dakota money kept at home. It is apparent that the railroads ought to benefit by the increase in business which the development of the industry would contribute in ways other than the actual freight tariff on lignite. It would appear at the outset that the lignite industry would be a great aid to the railroads, in furnishing tonnage for the lines in the winter when other tonnage is perhaps lessened.

The railroads now ask that the lignite coal rates be increased 40 to 60 per cent. It is evident that such an increase would be a severe blow to the industry. Not only would it perhaps increase the cost of coal to consumers and retard the extension of the market within the boundaries of North Dakota, but it would seriously interfere with the campaign of the lignite industry to develop markets at greater distances than ever before.

The layman is not in a position to counteract any statements the railroads may make as to the actual cost of handling the tonnage and the receipts. Nor can it be contended that the northwestern railroads are making an unusual profit, from the evidence given before various railroad regulating bodies.

But it does appear that the railroads ought to be interested in the growth of the lignite industry. The railroads of the Northwest ought to be more interested in its growth than in the coal industry of Illinois or Pennsylvania. The railroads themselves ought to be hesitant in asking for an increase which would throttle an infant industry with great potentialities.

It is to be hoped that the lignite coal operators will be joined by commercial bodies in making a determined fight against the increase.

DON'T FORGET THE FACTS

A school for the education of North Dakota citizens in the matter of the progress of the state agriculturally and industrially would serve a good purpose at this time. The merits and demerits of the state may be argued at length without gain; but the facts speak eloquently and for themselves.

It should be remembered that the dairy products marketed through cream stations alone in the state increased from 3,726,374 pounds in 1914 to 7,468,623 pounds in 1922, and that direct shipments brought the total monetary value of cream production in 1922 to $10,535,275.

That the number of cows used for milking increased from 190,824 in 1913 to 385,830 in 1922.

That the acreage of sweet clover and alfalfa increased from 18,951 in 1913 to an estimated acreage of 155,243 in 1923.

That corn acreage increased from 372,896 acres in 1913 to an estimated acreage of 776,756 in 1923.

These are but a few of the salient facts which show that North Dakota has been making a remarkable progress.

TIMES AHEAD

The business outlook is good, according to Jesse L. Livermore, well known in Wall Street as the largest individual stock market operator. Livermore says:

"During the past few years the people of our country have become accustomed to living on a higher standard than heretofore, and they are not going to be satisfied to live any other way in the future. The money they spend must necessarily mean a larger purchasing power, and that purchasing power is bound to keep business going at a good volume."

MORE THAN STATE OF SLAVERY

The day of the 100 per cent efficiency expert seems to be waning, and Americans are learning to live a little as they go along. So comments the Wall Street Journal.

It's about time. The efficiency experts—spurring men on to the last ounce of endurance, and standardizing us like clockwork, canning everything from our food to our thoughts—are destroying humanity at the roots. Real civilization is more than a state of slavery.

CHINESE MEDICINE

Fossils of huge prehistoric animals were discovered in China by American scientists. They're finding it difficult to get permission to bring their finds to America. Chinese law forbids the export, it being the custom over there to grind up old bones and dragon teeth and sell them as medicine.

Well, these concoctions at least are practically harmless. And that's more than can be said for some of the white man's remedies which cure one part of the body by wrecking another.

STRANGE FACT

Ships weigh less when going west than east, according to experiments by Professor W. G. Duffield.

Not long ago, Einstein demonstrated that a yardstick is longer when pointed east-west than if turned to the north and south.

Certainly getting to be a complicated world. There seems to be no such thing as exact knowledge. Everything is contradicted, just as matter of time.

RISING GENERATION

Punch, funniest comic magazine in the world, prints picture of a fat man being carried by a mob of boys. Underneath it says: "No, this is not a triumphal march. It is only poor Mr. Brown on a walking holiday overcome by the heat and discovered by Boy Scouts, who are taking him to the nearest village for medical assistance."

We have an idea, that's what the rising generation is going to do to us. Our generation, you know, has botched things frightfully.

TENANTRY ON FARMS

A statement made before the Minnesota Educational Association that forty-seven per cent of Iowa farms are in the hands of tenants may surprise some people. Iowa is commonly regarded as one of the wealthiest agricultural States of the Union, and if so much tenantry exists there, what may be expected of other States?

The subject is important and does not receive enough attention in popular thought. Figures are also sometimes misleading and give wrong impressions. It is claimed, for example, that half the Southern farms in the cotton and tobacco areas are occupied by tenants. Offsetting this, however, is a statement by the Institute of Research in Land Economics, based on its study of the 1920 census, that over the whole United States tenantry has increased only one per cent in the decade between 1910 and 1920. In seven Southern States it finds no increase in farm tenantry during this period.

It might be expected that certain factors would have increased farm tenantry in the last decade. Among these are immigration, the wider use of machinery on farms and the consequent need of large capital. This, however, appears to be a short view of the subject. The fact seems to be that over longer periods, except perhaps in certain districts of the South, farmers on the whole have been moving away from the tenantry and mortgage stage. Under present conditions this promising movement may be checked for a time, but over a longer span of years better farming methods under a diversified crop regime, combined with better marketing, may be depended on to insure progress away from tenantry.

Tenancy as a permanent condition is a disturbing factor in the development of a State. It is a stepping stone to individual ownership of farms. It has marked progress and been promising. The important thing to know is whether we are working our way out of tenantry, or drifting more extensively into it. Statistics covering the whole country do not seem to justify pessimism in this respect. Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Missee Pelican was a queer bird. She was queer as to looks and queer as to appetite and queer as to habits—so being queer in three things, you might say she was queer all over.

She wasn't a bit handsome. She had a beak long enough for three birds, and she carried her market basket on her chin.

She lived on the edge of the ocean in Dixie Land with six of her children and had a pretty good time fishing and feeding her family and seeing that they all grew up into good smart little pelicans.

So now you know all about her. Nancy and Nick happened along when she was giving her son, Pouch, a lesson in fishing, so they sat down on a rock to watch and listen.

"Do it this way, Pouch," said Missee Pelican. "You paddle out on the water a little way and then stop stony still. Keep as quiet as you know how and when a fish comes near make a grab and tuck him away from your line."

"You get two or three fish you can swim to shore and take your time while you dine. You are not so likely to get indigestion as you would if you boiled your food."

"All right, Mammy," said Pouch, waddling off to the edge of the water and floating away as lightly as a cork. With a few shoves of his queer paddle feet, he was away out where it was deep, and then remembering his mother's words, he stopped stony still.

Suddenly the Twins saw a fish come to the top of the water on a big wave. It stood a long, pointed nose and its fins stuck up like sails. That's what its name was, a snailfish and it was as long as a bathtub.

"Goodness!" gasped Nancy. "Jimmy Christmas!" said Nick. They were just about to make use of their magic shoes and save poor Pouch's life, when evidently Mister Snailfish decided he didn't want pelican that day for his lunch and swam out to sea.

The next minute the Twins saw Pouch swimming toward shore as fast as his paddle feet could push him. He had a worried look on his face.

"Say, Mammy," he called, "you didn't tell me what to do when the fish is too big to tuck away in my chin!"

"Why you just eat it then and there," she answered. "You don't mean to tell me you let a perfectly good dinner get away?"

"Well," the Twins heard Pouch say thoughtfully, "somebody's dinner got away. But I think it was the fish's."

"I expect, little Marquise, I was so completely engrossed in John and my wedding that I did not really look at Sydney Carton. I cannot convey to you, my surprise at finding that he is perhaps the handsomest man I have ever seen. He looks at least five years older than Jack although they were in the same class at college; consequently there cannot be more than a year or two difference in their ages.

Perhaps, however, it is because his hair is that beautiful steel gray that we sometimes see framing a young but most intellectual and caustic face. Great, deep, brown eyes, that are habitually serious but which at times become transparent windows through which a mischievous laughing character shows itself—eyes that seem always to take you into their confidence.

I tell you I was very proud when I entered the restaurant with Sydney on one side of me and the striking Viking blondness of Jack's hair on the other. It may have been because I was so conscious of the fact that really had a woman entered that room with two such splendid specimens of masculinity that I seemed to feel a hubbub in the conversation and then a rapid buzzing which told me that we were the observed of all observers.

I was thankful that I was looking my best and had on one of my troupeau gowns that I had worn very seldom. It was simplicity itself, a white hand-made dress which Rose Sears only can make. I remember thinking at the time mother bought it for me of the potent stitches that some woman must have put into its embroidery and tucks and in the sewing of its delicate lace.

I wore no jewels except my pearls—yes, little Marquise, I cannot call them beads anymore. They are pearls.

Sydney had ordered a table reserved and as we took our seats I noticed with a start of surprise that the waiter who stopped at John's chair to take our order was the same one who had waited on us the night before.

I had broken and scattered my pearls about the floor. I don't think I should have thought about it or recognized it in any way if he had not bent upon me such a peculiar glance of euphony and triumphant understanding that I could not repress a shudder. It was peculiar that both this waiter and Sydney were conscious of my spasm of nervousness and John perfectly oblivious that I was in the slightest annoyed.

"Someone walking over your grave, Leslie," inquired Syd lightly.

"I don't think so," I answered, trying to make my voice as casual as his. "You know I am going to be cremated."

"Are you not pushing the mourners a little Syd when you begin immediately to talk of death to one so radiantly alive and beautiful as Leslie is tonight?" said Jack, looking me over carefully.

"I see you've had your beads re-stringed," he remarked.

THE FOOL

By Channing Pollock

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Gilliam, her mother, Mrs. Gilliam, with Lella Thornbury, a divorcee are trimming a Christmas tree in the Church of the Nativity, a fashionable church of New York. Mrs. J. Oron Rice, society leader, comes in with Jerry Goodkind, a man-about-town, who is interested in Clara Jewett engaged to the Reverend Daniel Gilchrist, the assistant rector of the church, in had favor because of his radical sermons.

Dr. Wadham, the rector drops in at a meeting of the Wednesday Society proposes marriage to Clara. Daniel hears Charles Beasley demand his dismissal from the church of the Nativity.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"Oh, yes," returned Goodkind slightly. "There's a man out there, too, who says he won't go away until he sees you." He reached over and put a hand on Gilchrist's shoulder. "Dan, you're an awfully decent fellow, but I still think you made a mistake going into this. If you ever want to talk it over with me, I'd be glad to help you any time. You know that Goodby, Doctor. Goodby, Dan, and a merry Christmas." And he was gone.

Dr. Wadham paced the floor in silence for a few moments.

"Daniel, you're in trouble," he announced.

"Doctor, I'm used to it," Gilchrist answered, smiling.

"Then you don't care for your position in this church?"

"There's only one thing I care for more than this."

"To be worthy of it."

"When you're as old as I am, Daniel," he sighed resignedly, "you'll understand that being honest doesn't necessarily mean being disagreeable."

"Doesn't it mean—telling the truth?"

"Yes, you know the truth, Daniel?"

"Yes, don't you? Doesn't every man-in his heart? And if we want to keep it in our hearts and never think about it or look it in the face, shouldn't some one open the door and cry, 'Behold! I didn't tell them anything they didn't know, Doctor. Don't know anything they don't know, just surrounded by the world?'"

"That isn't fair. These good people have given—"

"Given—what cost them nothing. Frumpy and trumpy and diamond stars?" He waved a hand toward the bedecked tree. "That's how all of us give—what we don't want. What we don't want we don't want. You're good, Dan, but you're honest, and honestly, what would you say tomorrow if your wife told you she'd sold her rings and given the money to the poor?"

"Why, I—"

"You'd say she was crazy."

"But there's no necessity."

"Precisely. There's no necessity. People lying in the parks tonight. What would Mrs. Rice say if I invited them to sleep in her pew?"

"That there's no reason why any should share dirt and disease."

"Exactly! We may believe in the brotherhood of man, but we know about germ. We're not sure what is true, but there's one thing we are sure of and mean to be sure of, and that's our own comfort. You know that and I know it and they know it—but we mustn't say it. All right. In God's name what are we to say?"

Dr. Wadham had been awaiting an opening. He saw it now.

"Precisely," he interposed. "That brings us to tomorrow's sermon. I understand you intend to talk about the strike."

Daniel nodded. "Now that's not a very pleasant subject for Christmas. Wouldn't it be more fitting to preach from the text, 'Glory to God in the Highest!'"

"Precisely," Daniel said, good will toward man. "Daniel said."

"Yes," agreed Dr. Wadham, delighted at what he interpreted as an acceptance of the suggestion. "You might say 'There are many kinds of peace.'"

"But there aren't," interrupted Dan.

"There is physical peace," went on the rector, "peace that came with the end of this cruel war."

"There is no peace," said Daniel abruptly. "There is only fear—and hate and vanity and lust and envy and greed of men and nations. There are only people praying about that for a long time."

Dr. Wadham was not there. Something strange, something glorious, shone in his eyes.

"Follow whom?"

"Christ!" Daniel replied—as though far away through the shadows. "And fear follow!" the rector exclaimed.

Daniel listened as one detached. He turned to the little white-clad man curiously.

"Don't worry," he smiled, reading the rector's anxiety. "I'm quite sane. Only—I've been wondering about that for a long time."

"Wondering?" suggested Dr. Wadham, unable to comprehend.

"What would happen if anybody really tried to live like Christ?" Gilchrist spoke fervently.

"It won't work, Daniel." Dr. Wadham spoke feelingly with a trace of discomposure in his voice. "It's a beautiful ideal, but it won't work. Times have changed, and things are different. Life isn't as simple as it was 2000 years ago. The trouble with you, Daniel, is that you're not practical."

"I wonder," Gilchrist remarked thoughtfully.

"At least you must promise not to discuss the strike."

"Or else let me take the pulpit."

"I won't do that." His emphatic tone brought Dr. Wadham's shoulders back squarely.

"Very well," he said, sharply. "Preach your Christmas sermon, and afterward—"

"Yes?"

"I think you may find a greater field of usefulness elsewhere."

The men stood face to face for a moment, both tense. It was Daniel who turned and lifted his hand to his face.

"The angry, Daniel," said Dr. Wadham, his tone softening. "I know you've been happy in your work here. I know your failure hurts. But you saw it coming, and you wouldn't turn aside."

He looked up, his eyes flashing. "The man who turns away from his vision of duty!" he cried. His voice was full of conviction. "It's all right, doctor," he said.

He reached for Dr. Wadham's hand and shook it. He was smiling—smiling sadly.

B. H. S. 'DEMONS' GET ROUSING SEND OFF TODAY

Several Hundred People at Station to Cheer Team as It Leaves for Fargo

15 MEN ON SQUAD

Team Generally in Good Shape and Is Out to Bring Back Victory

Bismarck High School's "Demons" left on Northern Pacific train No. 2 at 9 o'clock this morning for Fargo, where the gridders meet Fargo high Saturday afternoon at 1:45 p. m. on the Agricultural College field to settle the championship of the southern half of the state and to determine which team shall meet the winner of the Minot-Grafton game for the high school championship of the state.

The "Demons" were given a rousing send-off by several hundred students, teachers and local business men. George Knowles, yell leader, mounted a box car and led the high school rooters through the yells for the team as a whole and for each man on it.

Probably 100 Bismarck fans will see the team in action at Fargo Saturday, of which half will be high school students and half will be local business men and women. Many will go by automobile, leaving early tomorrow morning. Some went today.

Coach Housgr took 15 men on the trip. The Bismarck team will line up at the start as follows: center, Benzer (capt.); guards, Russell and Bender; tackles, Scott and Dodson; ends, Sheppard and Scroggins; quarter, Brown; half-backs, Noddings and O'Hare; full back, Alfson. Substitutes, Kiebert and Livdahl, backfield; Thomas and Lane, ends. In addition Pitch and Robidos are going "on their own." Bender was treated by a physician for a boil before he left, and Scroggins had lost a coat which someone took from him. Generally the team was in good physical condition. It will work out on the A. C. field today.

BADGERS SORE OVER LOSS OF STAR PLAYER

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—At the crucial stage of another western conference football season, the undefeated University of Wisconsin team found itself today handicapped by the loss of a star tackle disqualified for professionalism.

The decision of the athletic council of the university, arrived at, deprives the Badger eleven of E. C. Garber, lineman, two days before the battle with Illinois to determine which of the two teams remains in the race for the conference championship.

Garber was found guilty of a technical violation of rule five, western conference regulations. He was found to have "used his athletic ability and knowledge of athletics for gain," by teaching swimming in the Lacrosse, Wis., Y. M. C. A.

Intense indignation was displayed by the student body over the finding. They recalled the incident of last year, when shortly before the game with Illinois, a protest from that school brought the disqualification of Don Murray, another star tackle. The Badgers lost that game.

HOPPE, COCHRAN WILL MEET

Chicago, Nov. 9.—The final match for the world's championship 18.2 billiards between Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran will be held here Dec. 17, 18, 19, according to announcement made by President B. E. Pensinger of the Brunswick, Balke, Collender company, who directed the New York tournament.

The match will be for 1,500 points and will be played in blocks of 500, it was stated.

Cochran, whose performance in the New York matches astonished billiard fans passed through Chicago yesterday enroute to his home in Hollywood. He said he would spend most of the time intervening before the matches here practicing and conditioning himself for his chance for the title.

Hoppe is planning a tour through eastern and middlewestern cities until the time of the playoff.

STAR GRAFTON MAN RULED OUT

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 9.—Peter Gergen, star halfback of the Grafton high school football team, is ineligible to compete in the game here Saturday against Minot high for the championship of the north half of the state, according to a statement received here from Nelson Savin of Devils Lake, member of the state high school athletic board of control. Gergen was disqualified because of insufficient credits made last year, he said.

NO GAME, HE SAYS

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 9.—Coach Finnegan of the Grafton high school team declared today that if Gergen, disqualified halfback, could not play against Minot high tomorrow there would be no game.

YOUNG PREHN IS WINNER

Young Prehn defeated Mike Collins in two straight falls, the first in two minutes and twenty seconds and the second in ten minutes, both an arm lock, in the Elks hall at Mandan last night.

COLLEGE STARS

Fifteen years ago Connie Mack was the only major league manager who would give a college ball player a trial. Today the college stars are eagerly sought by every major league club.

TRADE VEACH

In all probability Bobby Veach will be traded by Detroit during the winter. Veach doesn't seem to fit in with Cobb's policy, yet is too good trading material to be allowed to sit on the bench.

LALOE'S WEAKNESS

Larry Laloe, now that he is out of baseball, says that a fast ball right through the heart of the plate was the hardest ball for him to hit. "I liked a ball just outside that I could crack into rightfield or one on the third base line," says Larry.

EASILY PEEVED

National League umpires say that if Tony Kaufman didn't get peevish every time he thought the umpire missed a strike he would be a 25 per cent better pitcher. The moment he starts to fuss with the umpire he loses much of his stuff. There are several other pitchers in both leagues with that failing.

FAST BALL BEST

Dazzy Vance has the best fast ball in the National League, say the leading batters of that organization. Lack of a change of paces his outstanding fault. When the opposition starts hitting his speed he has little else to offer.

Football Facts

By Billy Evans

THE QUESTION

The football coach is not satisfied with the way the player calling the signals is selecting his plays. At a certain critical stage of the game, desiring certain plays to be tried he sends in another player to do the calling of signals. The new player sent into the game does not substitute for the player who has been calling signals, as the coach desires this player to continue in the game, even though the right to call the signals is to be vested in another player. Is it possible for the player sent into the game by the coach to immediately take up the work of calling the signals after reporting to the proper official? It so happens that he is sent into the game on the fourth down and the question as to what course to pursue is debatable.

THE ANSWER

A player may be substituted for another at any time. He must immediately report to the referee or umpire. When a player is substituted he must not communicate in any way with any of the players on the field until after the ball has been put into play. When a player is sent into the game to give signals and the man who has been giving them is not removed, the substituted player cannot give the signals until one play has been completed after he has reported to the official. The signals for this play must be given by the player who was the original selection for that duty and who still continues in the game. The idea of this is to prevent a coach from sending a new player in to give the signals for a certain play at a critical stage of the game. One play must elapse before such a player can take up his duties as the giver of signals.

AS TO PENALTIES

Failure of a substitute to report to the proper official carries with it the penalty of a loss of five yards. A player withdrawn from the game during the second half may not return to the game. If a player illegally returns and it is discovered, the player shall be suspended from the game and his team loses half the distance to the goal from the spot of the down where the illegal substitution was made.

If a player illegally substituted takes part in a number of plays before the error is discovered, the penalty shall be enforced from the spot where it was discovered.

MANDAN NEWS CHILDREN ARE NOT CHATTELS

Mandan, N. D., Nov. 9.—Children are not chattels, and they cannot be held as security for loans or debts, is the opinion of Judge H. L. Berry in district court as handed down in the case of Mrs. Fern Aldrich of Grand Rapids, Mich., against Mr. and Mrs. Cole Stetson, farmers, residing in the northern part of Oliver county near Hazen.

A few years ago Mrs. Aldrich was united in marriage to a brother of Mrs. Cole Stetson. There was a baby girl. Then marital difficulties—the Aldrichs were divorced. Fern Aldrich was ill and unable to care for her baby following her divorce and Mr. and Mrs. Cole Stetson agreed to care for the child until she was able to.

Money Demanded of Mother

Two weeks ago Mrs. Aldrich came for her baby. The Stetsons refused to give up the child claiming it was theirs by right of adoption. Finally the party went to Center, seat of Oliver county and drew up an agreement whereby the Stetsons would give over the child to the mother upon payment of $500 which they claimed was their due in caring for it.

Fern Aldrich paid $40 from her scanty store of cash and then sought ways and means of raising the balance which she must pay the Stetsons before she could have her baby. In an hysterical condition she appealed to Atty. John F. Sullivan, Mandan, who took the case and argued the unusual question as to whether a child could be held for a debt before Judge H. L. Berry in district court at Stanton. The judge reserved his decision, pored over law books for a precedent and finally today awarded the child to the mother, holding a child not a chattel.

Fern Aldrich and child, reunited, and with no money debt separating them or hovering over their heads, went on their smiling way today for Grand Rapids, Mich.

The operetta "The Merry Milkmaids" will be given under the auspices of the Presbyterian choir soon after the first of the year. Mrs.

W. H. Ordway is directing. It is expected that it will require 60 voices, a number of them being from other choirs.

The Carson high school football team and the second team of the De Molay team of Jamestown will be played in Mandan during the late fall, the first one probably Nov. 17 and the latter Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. W. H. Stutsman entertained a number of friends at luncheon Wednesday.

Members of the Mandan Gun club have arranged for a shoot to be held at the traps west of the city, Monday, Nov. 12, when turkeys will be given to holders of the highest scores.

Lives Start at the Altar

By JOHN PALMER

Three days before their marriage Luke said: "Armine, I feel so unworthy of you and you have idealized me. I—I think you ought to know some of the things I've done."

Armine looked at him with her innocent blue eyes. "Luke, dear, it doesn't matter, as long as I know that you care for me."

"But, Armine, dearest, you—you see you told me you had never kissed any man before me, and—Oh, if you knew some of the things I've done!"

"Tell me then, if you care to," said Armine softly.

"Well, I—I was practically engaged to a girl two years ago, and of course I used to kiss her every time we were together. I couldn't bring myself to tell you about her."

There was pain in Armine's voice. "Did you care for her as much as me, Luke?"

"Of course not, dearest. That would be impossible."

"Oh, well, then, it doesn't matter," Armine answered.

"But then I—well, only the week before I met you I kissed a girl under the mistletoe. A strange girl whom I just met."

"A strange girl, Luke? How could you?"

"I don't know, Armine. It was just an impulse of desperation. I think."

"Oh, well, it doesn't matter, Luke. You—you've never kissed any girl since you cared for me, have you?"

"No," answered Luke. "but I—I was as good as engaged to another girl two years ago."

"What, still another one?"

"It's terrible," said Luke. "I don't know what came over me, but I suppose I was unconsciously looking for you, and not finding you, I got reckless. I never cared for any of them nearly as much as I do for you."

"Luke, dearest," said Armine, "all that you have told me sounds dreadful in my way. But so long as I am sure that you love me for myself alone, it doesn't matter. Don't let us speak about it any more."

"You're an angel," answered Luke, embracing her.

Armine went home. Seating herself at her desk she bowed her head in thought for a long time. Then, opening a drawer, she took out a letter and re-read it.

"Why must you throw yourself away on this man when he can never be to you what I have been? Don't you remember those days at the beach last summer, when we lived for each other, those vows of eternal love? Where have they gone? Where is the girl I know who now writes to me so calmly that she is engaged to be married? Armine, I can't believe you are the same girl!"

"I know I shall do well in the West, and that it will not be long before I am able to send for you. Won't you trust me and wait? I send you a thousand kisses—such kisses as I gave you last summer, when you swore to love me through all eternity."

She read it and her eyes grew softer. Then she penned her reply:

"I do love you, and I shall always love you, I suppose, my dear. But life and love as I am discovering, are two very different things. The man I am engaged to can assure me of a future, which you, poor boy, will never be able to do, in spite of all your hopes. You are not the providing temperament."

"John, dear, I do love you, but what you ask of me is quite impossible. I am tired of supporting myself in an office, and I am tired of a happy release from drudgery. In taking this decision I am only doing what every girl who has reached the age of twenty-five has to do. I am almost—heartbroken, but this has to be."

She stamped, addressed and sealed the envelope, and slipped out with it to the post. On the way she met Luke again.

"I was coming around to see you. I was afraid," he stammered, "that you might have been so shocked at what I told you."

She smiled up at him beautifully. "Luke, dear, the past is behind us. Our lives together start from the day we stand up at the altar together."

Which meant a great deal more than he was destined ever to know. (© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

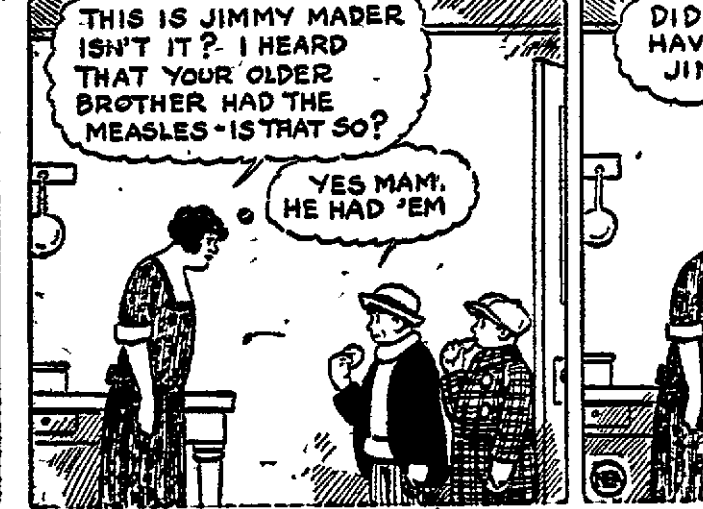

COST RAISING FLAX LEAVES LITTLE PROFIT

Rex Willard's Figures Show Cost of Raising Bushel Is $2.12

Fargo, Nov. 9.—Present market prices are about equal to the cost of producing flax in North Dakota, according to estimates secured by Rex E. Willard of the farm management department at the Agricultural college showing the average cost of production per bushel to be $2.12 this year.

The detailed information on the cost of producing flax in North Dakota will be presented at the tariff commission hearing in Washington in opposition to the proposal to lower the tariff on flax and linseed oil. President John Lee Coulter is chairman of the committee appointed by the Fargo Commercial club to go to the west.

Several Hundred People at Station to Cheer Team as It Leaves for Fargo

15 MEN ON SQUAD

Team Generally in Good Shape and Is Out to Bring Back Victory

Bismarck High School's "Demos" left on Northern Pacific train No. 2 at 9 o'clock this morning for Fargo, where the gridders meet Fargo high Saturday afternoon at 1:45 p. m. on the Agricultural College field to settle the championship of the state.

The "Demos" were given a rousing send-off by several hundred students, teachers and local business men. George Knowles, yell leader, mounted a box car and led the high school rosters through the yells for the team as a whole and for each man on it.

Probably 100 Bismarck fans will see the team in action at Fargo Saturday, of which half will be local students and half will be local business men and women. Many will go by automobile, leaving early tomorrow morning. Some went today.

Coach Heuser took 15 men on the trip. The Bismarck team will line up at the start as follows: center, Benzer (capt.); guards, Russell and Binder; tackles, Scott and Dodson; ends, Sheppard and Scroggins; quarter, Brown; half-backs, Noddings and O'Hare; full back, Alfson. Substitutes, Kiebert and Livdahl, backfield; Thomas and Lane, ends. In addition Fitch and Robidou are going "on their own." Bender was treated by a physician for a boil before he left and Scroggins had lost a coat which someone took from him. Generally the team was in good physical condition. It will work out on the A. C. field today.

BADGERS SORE OVER LOSS OF STAR PLAYER

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—At the crucial stage of another western conference football season, the undefeated University of Wisconsin team found itself today handicapped by the loss of a star tackle disqualified for professionalism.

The decision of the athletic council of the university, arrived at, deprives the Badger eleven of E. C. Gerber, lineman, two days before the battle with Illinois to determine which of the two teams remains in the race for the conference championship.

Gerber was found guilty of a technical violation of rule five, western conference regulations. He was found to have "used his athletic ability and knowledge of athletics for gain," by teaching swimming in the LaCrosse, Wis., Y. M. C. A.

Intense indignation was displayed by the student body over the finding. They recalled the incident of last year, when shortly before the

HOPPE, COCHRAN WILL MEET

Chicago, Nov. 9.—The final match for the world's championship 182 ballline billiards between Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran will be held here Dec. 17, 18, 19, according to announcement made by President B. E. Benasur of the Brunswick, Bulke, Colander and company, who directed the New York tournament.

The match will be for 1,500 points and will be played in blocks of 500, it was stated.

Cochran, whose performance in the New York matches astonished billiard fans passed through Chicago yesterday enroute to his home in Hollywood. He said he would spend most of the time intervening before the matches here practicing and conditioning himself for his chance for the title.

Hoppe is planning a tour through eastern and middlewestern cities until the time of the playoff.

STAR GRAFTON MAN RULED OUT

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 9.—Pete Gergem, star halfback on the Grafton high school football team, is ineligible to compete in the game here Saturday against Minot high for the championship of the northern half of the state, according to a statement received here from Nelson Bruvink of Devils Lake, member of the state high school athletic board of control. Gergem was disqualified because of insufficient credits made last year, he said.

NO GAME, HE SAYS

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 9.—Coach Frankman of the Grafton high school team declared today that if Gergem, disqualified half-back, could not play against Minot high tomorrow there would be no game.

Young Prehn defeated Mike Collins in two straight falls, the first in two minutes and twenty seconds and the second in ten minutes, both an arm lock, in the Elks hall at Mandan last night.

Fifteen years ago, Connie Mack was the only major league manager who would give a college ball player a trial. Today the college stars are eagerly sought by every major league club.

In all probability Bobby Veach will be traded by Detroit during the winter. Veach doesn't seem to fit in with Cobb's policy, yet is too good trading material to be allowed to sit on the bench.

LAJOIE'S WEAKNESS

Larry Lajoie, now that he is out of baseball, says that a fast ball right through the heart of the plate was the hardest ball for him to hit. "I liked a ball just outside that I could crack into rightfield or one on the inside that I could pull down the third base line," says Larry.

THE QUESTION

The football coach is not satisfied with the way the player calling the signals is selecting his plays. At a certain critical stage of the game, desiring certain plays to be tried he sends in another player to do the calling of signals. The new player sent into the game does not substitute for the player who has been calling signals, as the coach desires this player to continue in the game, even though the right to call the signals is to be tested in another play.

Is it possible for the player sent into the game by the coach to immediately take up the work of calling the signals after reporting to the proper official? It so happens that he is sent into the game on the fourth down and the question as to what course to pursue is debatable.

MANDAN NEWS

CHILDREN ARE NOT CHATTELS

Mandan, N. D., Nov. 9.—Children are not chattels, and they cannot be held as security for loans or debts, is the opinion of Judge H. L. Berry in district court as handed down in the case of Mrs. Fern Aldrich of Grand Rapids, Mich., against Mr. and Mrs. Cole Stetson, farmers, residing in the northern part of Oliver county near Hazen.

A few years ago Mrs. Aldrich was united in marriage to a brother of Mrs. Cole Stetson. There was a baby girl. Then marital difficulties—the play has been completed after he has reported to the official. The signals for this play must be given by the player who was the original selection for that duty and who still continues in the game. The idea of this

Two weeks ago Mrs. Aldrich came for her baby. The Stetsons refused to give up the child claiming it was theirs by right of adoption. Finally the party went to center, seat of Oliver county and drew up an agreement whereby the Stetsons would give over the child to the mother upon payment of $500 which they claimed was their due in caring for it.

Fern Aldrich paid $40 from her scanty store of cash and then sought ways and means of raising the balance which she must pay the Stetsons before she could have her baby.

In an hysterical condition she appealed to Atty. John P. Sullivan, Mandan, who took the case and argued the unusual question as to whether a child could be held for a debt before Judge H. L. Berry in district court at Stanton. The judge reserved his decision, pored over law books for a precedent and finally today awarded the child to the mother, holding a child not a chattel.

Fern Aldrich and child, reunited, and with no money debt separating them or hovering over their heads, went on their smiling way today for Grand Rapids, Mich.

The operetta "The Merry Milkmaids" will be given under the auspices of the Presbyterian choir soon after the first of this year. Mrs.

W. H. Ordway is directing. It is expected that it will require 60 voices, a number of them being from other choirs.

The Carson high school football team and the second team of the De May team of Jamestown will be played in Mandan during the late fall, the first one probably Nov. 17 and the latter Thanksgiving day.

Mrs. W. H. Stutman entertained a number of friends at luncheon Wednesday.

Members of the Mandan Gm club have arranged for a shoot to be held at the traps west of the city, Monday, Nov. 12, when turkeys will be given to holders of the highest scores.

Mrs. T. G. C. Kennelly has left for Minneapolis, where she was called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Mary Caskelly of Dickinson who underwent an operation.

Mrs. L. N. Cary was hostess yesterday and Wednesday at bridge luncheons.

Frank Koch of Riverton, Mont., who has been spending a few days here as the guest of J. M. Messmer has returned to his home accompanied by the latter.

NEARLY HALF PEOPLE NOW IN ZONED CITIES

Department of Commerce
Cites Growth of Plan Being Urged in Bismarck

PRACTICE IS GROWING

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—More than 22,000,000 people, comprising 40 per cent of the urban population of the United States, live in 183 zoned cities, towns and villages, according to a statement made public by Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce.

During the first eight months of this year 54 municipalities, with more than 6,500,000 population, have adopted zoning ordinances. This indicates the greatest progress in zoning that has ever been made during a similar period. More than two-thirds of the 183 zoned municipalities have been zoned since September, 1921.

Keystone of Zoning.

Neighborhoodness in the use of land is said to be the keystone of zoning. The home owner is protected from the intrusion of the junk yard which for no good reason might be moved into his neighborhood, and business and shopping districts are protected against noisy factories. Industrial plants have greater freedom in selecting sites convenient to good transportation. Such measures should provide for the use of the different kinds of land and districts within a city for the purposes to which they are best adapted and allow for orderly growth of commercial and industrial districts. They accomplish their purposes by regulating the height of buildings, the area of the land that they may cover, and the use to which they may be put in the different districts of the city or town. The zoning ordinance is generally an auxiliary to the city plan, and helps to provide for the orderly growth of the city along lines that will bring the most satisfactory results to all concerned.

Revised figures that on January 1, 1923, 129 municipalities had adopted zoning regulations. During the year 54 more, some large and some small, located north, south, east and west, have been added to the list. Of the 68 cities in the United States with over 100,000 population, 36 have zoning ordinances in effect. Chicago, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Mo., Seattle, Providence, Columbus, Worcester, Grand Rapids and Youngstown are among the larger cities which have adopted zoning ordinances this year. The smallest community to adopt a zoning ordinance in 1923 had only 420 inhabitants, according to the last census. Twenty-one towns and villages of less than 10,000 inhabitants adopted zoning regulations in 1923. Seventeen communities with 10,000 to 50,000 population, and 16 cities with more than 50,000 population also zoned during the year.

In the number of places zoned, New Jersey leads with 51; New York is second with 39; Illinois, third with 23; California, fourth, with 17; Ohio, fifth, with 13; Massachusetts, sixth, with 11; Wisconsin, seventh, with 10; and Missouri, eighth, with four. Indiana, Kansas and Michigan have three each; Rhode Island and Washington have two each; and Georgia, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia have one each. The District of Columbia also is zoned.

More Enabling Legislation.
More new state zoning enabling legislation has been passed in 1923 than usual, and the standard state zoning enabling act which was prepared by the Department of Commerce, was used to a greater or less extent in most of the laws. Connecticut, Delaware, Iowa, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Wyoming passed important zoning enabling acts, and a number of other states passed legislation supplementing or amending existing laws. The state of Wisconsin has passed an act granting to counties the power to zone.

The complete list of zoned municipalities, as of September 1, 1923, with references to the state acts under which zoning is permitted, may be obtained from the Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

EPISCOPAL WILL

CONVENE IN JUNE
Fargo, June 9.—Members of the Episcopal clergy of North Dakota were in Fargo this week to take up business matters of importance to the state council of the church. It was decided to hold the 40th annual state convention of the Episcopal church on June 15, 1924. The place of meeting was not decided but is to be selected by Bishop J. Poyntz Tyler later.

Didn't Waste Money on Food

"The recent campaign against wastefulness in eating did not affect me much as I haven't been able to eat anything but toast and tea for the past five years. Even that would create gas and cause me distress. My weight was down to eighty-four pounds and my complexion muddy. I had frequent pains in the region of my appendix. I am glad I did not listen to an operation, as May's Wonderful Remedy has made a new woman of me." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will relieve or money refunded.

CITY REFUSES $20,000 BOOST IN THE PRICE

but not for 1921 and 1922, in addition to the $265,000 sale price. Members of the city commission informed Mr. Flannery that they were ready to stand by the original bid, paying $265,000 for the plant and assuming the taxes after June 9. The city commissioners pointed out that the company had enjoyed the revenue of the plant since that time, and also that the city paid $417 for cleaning the reservoirs.

Mr. Flannery said that he feared that he could not accept the proposition, but that during the night and this morning he would get in touch with the bondholders and stockholders to whom he was responsible, and inform them of the situation. This was to be followed by another meeting this afternoon. Mr. Flannery was accompanied here by his son, R. C. Flannery of St. Paul.

Germany Today Is Land of Fugitives

Berlin, Nov. 9.—Germany today is a land of fugitives. Every third person in the German republic is a refugee. It is estimated that there are 2,000,000 Germans who have been thrown back upon their fatherland as a result of the war and the carrying out of the Versailles Treaty.

This figure does not include the Russians and other foreigners who have sought refuge in Germany, and it does not take into consideration the 100,000 inhabitants of the Ruhr and Rhineland who have been deported since the French occupation. Official statistics show that 750,000 Germans from enemy countries are now in the republic. From the strictly German settlements in Russia and in parts of Hungary now ceded to Rumania there are 200,000 refugees. Alsace-Lorraine contributed 150,000 deportees. From Poland there are 850,000 refugees. Upper Silesia supplied 90,000 persons who could not be assimilated in Poland. From the former German colonies there are 16,000 refugees. Czechoslovakia and the portion of Schleswig ceded to Denmark each contributed 10,000.

Much of this dislodged population can never return to the land where it was before the war. Many of the refugees are politically unacceptable to the lands where they previously lived. The properties of refugees have been confiscated or lost, and they contribute to the difficulties which Germany is facing in housing and supplying bread to its population.

MASONIC RITES FOR MR. THOMAS

Many Friends From Surrounding Towns Attended Services

Impressive Masonic funeral rites were conducted for J. D. Thomas, at the Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Officers of the Tancered Commandery of the Masonic Lodge No. 5 assisted by Rev. S. F. Halfyard had charge of the services.

Prior to his death Mr. Thomas had requested that the Masons conduct his funeral the wish being the result of the fact that he was a staunch Mason, a member of the Bismarck Chapter of the Eastern Star and had retained his membership in the Blue Lodge and chapter commandery at Minneapolis. He was also a member of the railway conductors.

The services were very impressive, officers and members of the Knights Templar appearing in full uniform. Friends of the deceased came from Enderlin, Minneapolis, and many of the surrounding towns, and trainmen occupied a special section in the Temple. An abundance of floral offerings betokened sympathy of numerous friends of the family. Beautiful wreaths came from various organizations.

A part of the service consisted of the special music furnished by Mrs. Richard A. Tracy and Henry Halverson, "The Crossing of the Bar" and "Abide with Me" being sung by Mr. Halverson with Mrs. Tracy as accompanist and "Jesus Lover of My Soul" being sung as a duet by Mrs. Tracy and Mr. Halverson.

At the close of the services in the Temple which were largely attended the funeral procession went to Fairview cemetery where a brief service was held. Rev. Halfyard making a prayer at the close of the service as an escort to Seventh St. was a body of Knights Templar in uniform followed by members of the Bismarck Lodge No. 5 Masons. All pallbearers, members of the Masonic organization, appeared in full uniform.
